

DEMOCRATS CALL ON HOOVER FOR SUGGESTIONS ON NEW ECONOMIES

Robinson Submits Resolution Demanding Specific Recommendations—Based on Reports of White House Conference.

RAINEY SUGGESTS 'SENSIBLE SALES TAX'

Crisp Would Reduce Government Departments Outlay 5 Pct.—Farm Aid and Jobless Relief Awaiting Action.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, June 13.—A Democratic demand for specific recommendations from President Hoover for balancing the budget drew an administration denial in the Senate today that the President has announced there must be further economies or revenue amounting to $200,000,000.

Senator Robinson, the Democratic leader, submitted a resolution based on statements from Republicans who conferred with President Hoover at the White House Saturday night that $150,000,000 to $200,000,000 additional was needed, asking for specific suggestions from the President.

Senator Reed of Pennsylvania, an administration spokesman, objected to consideration of the resolution and denied that President Hoover had announced the additional savings were necessary.

Asking for immediate consideration, Robinson said it calls upon the President to say whether he is willing to agree to a 10 per cent Government pay cut, whether he will insist upon his furlough plan, and what additional economies he believes are possible.

"Tell us something," he said. "Tell the Senate something definite and something specific."

"If the President will do that, we may hope that there is at last in sight accomplishment of a purpose that substantially everyone here is agreed to."

Meanwhile, Representative Crisp (Dem., Georgia), told the House he would oppose new taxes to provide $150,000,000 to $200,000,000 additional revenue.

"The budget should be balanced and it should be balanced by reducing expenditures," he added.

Robinson resolution said: "Whereas the President has announced that it is necessary to bring about a further reduction in the costs of Government of approximately $200,000,000, or to levy additional taxes; and

Whereas the President, with the assistance of the members of his Cabinet and the heads of the independent offices and commissions, is in better position within the short time before Congress adjourns to ascertain in what departments, bureaus, commissions and independent offices such reduction can be brought about and how it may be done;

Now, therefore, Be it resolved, that the President is requested to confer with the members of his Cabinet and the heads of all bureaus, commissions and independent offices, upon the best way to bring about said reduction in appropriations, and to submit to Congress for its consideration specific suggestions covering each item that the President recommends as a suitable way and place to accomplish the proposed reduction of $200,000,000 in the appropriations for the fiscal year beginning July 1, 1932."

Leaders had expected to make this the final week of the session, but Saturday night the President called in the Republicans conferring on House and Senate differences in the economy program and told them the savings expected to materialize from the final draft of this bill were not sufficient.

Republicans pessimistic. They say they do not see how any more is to be saved. They even dislike to think of raising any more revenue than will be obtained by the huge tax bill already passed.

President Hoover also conferred with Charles G. Dawes, president of the Reconstruction Corporation.

HURLEY NOT CANDIDATE FOR VICE PRESIDENT, HE SAYS

Secretary of War Makes Statement to Newspaper Men at Washington.

WASHINGTON, June 13.—Secretary of War Hurley told newspaper men today he was not a candidate for the Republican vice presidential nomination.

Commenting on reports from Chicago mentioning him as a possible nominee for that post, Hurley said: "I am not and will not be a candidate for the vice presidency."

The Secretary conferred during the morning with President Hoover. He said he had not yet decided whether he would attend the convention.

"If I do go," he asserted, "I will make it perfectly plain to the delegates at Chicago that they can't shoot at my old friend Charles Curtis with me."

DR. LITTLE CALLS DRY LAW 'STUPID' AND 'UNENFORCEABLE'

Former Michigan U. President Speaks on Prohibition to Maine Graduates.

YRONG, Me., June 13.—Referring to national prohibition as "stupid legislation" and "the unenforceable law that makes a mockery of justice," Dr. Clarence C. Little, former president of the University of Maine, in an address today to the graduating class of the school, called upon "wets and dry alike" to unite in the desire for its repeal.

Dr. Little, who left Maine to become president of the University of Michigan and now is director of the American Society for the Control of Cancer, urged simplicity as a remedy for the ills which beset society.

I AM FOR CHARLES CURTIS, SAYS SECRETARY OF TREASURY

CHICAGO, June 13.—Secretary of the Treasury Mills, one of the administration's leading political strategists, said last night in a matter-of-fact way: "I am for Charles Curtis."

It chilled, for the time being at least, talk that it would be an excellent idea to replace Curtis as vice presidential candidate.

Those who have followed Republican conventions in the past recall that on two occasions, at least, plans of party leaders for the vice presidential nomination have been upset. One of these instances resulted in the nomination of Calvin Coolidge.

HOUSE DECIDES, 226-175, TO TAKE UP BONUS BILL

Votes Formal Consideration of $2,200,000,000 Patman Measure—It Not Likely to Override Veto.

FOUR-HOUR DEBATE SET FOR TOMORROW

Sponsor Says He Will Urge Issuance of Government Bonds in Support of New Currency.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, June 13.—By a vote of 226 to 175, the House today discharged its Rules Committee from further consideration of the Patman bonus bill and then adopted a resolution to take up the bill tomorrow.

Advocates of immediate cash payments to former service men had said they could muster 300 votes to discharge the Rules Committee, which they said, would indicate definitely enough favorable votes for the bonus legislation itself to override a presidential veto.

The vote today indicated, however, that the Patman proposal would fall short of the necessary two-thirds majority by about 65 votes. President Hoover has announced he will veto bonus legislation this session.

Under the resolution to consider the bonus tomorrow, there will be four hours' debate on bonus proposals, the time to be divided equally between those who are for and those who are against the legislation. Five-minute explanations will be allowed for each amendment.

To Propose Substitute. Representative Wright Patman (Dem., Texas), author of the pending bonus bill, announced during debate today that he would move to substitute the plan of former Senator Robert L. Owen of Oklahoma.

The original Patman plan called for issuance of enough new currency to pay the $2,200,000,000 bonus charge without regard to gold coverage. The Owen plan calls for issuance of 34 per cent Government bonds at the same time the bonus currency is printed and distributed. These bonds would back the currency and would not be sold until the wholesale commodity price level went to the average of 1926. The Treasury would continue to sell the bonds as long as commodity prices remained above this level.

In effect, the Owen plan is a combination of the Patman bill and the Goldborough "controlled inflation" bill that recently passed the House and was later reintroduced in the Senate Banking and Currency Committee.

Debate today was limited to 20 unexpiring minutes. Before Patman obtained recognition to move to discharge the Rules Committee, Acting Speaker Rainey warned the crowded galleries that he would enforce the House rules against demonstration by spectators. The men's galleries were filled with former service men. There was not the slightest sign of a commotion, even when the vote was announced.

Summary of Debate.

Representative Ragon (Dem., Arkansas), opening the arguments for those demanding that the Rules Committee be discharged. After saying that the Owen plan would be offered as a substitute for the Patman proposal, he declared that cash payments to veterans would discharge the Government's obligations to the former service men and would furnish the best method for distributing funds to rehabilitate purchasing power.

He was answered by Representative Fish (Rep., New York), the most prominent "Red" barker in the House, who declared the Government would not owe able veterans a cent until 1946, when the adjusted compensation certificates come due. At the top of his voice, he shouted that the veterans who had come to Washington expecting bonus checks had been "adly guided and misled" by their leaders in and out of Congress.

The same line of argument was taken by Representative Simmons (Rep., Nebraska).

These arguments were answered by Representative Boleau (Rep., Wisconsin), who said the pictures of ruin and disaster painted by Fish and Simmons were not convincing.

"Ruin and disaster will be upon us," he roared, "unless we do something for the veterans and put more money in circulation."

In a one-minute speech, Representative La Guardia (Rep., New York), said that the bill would be passed.

GOES IN VOLCANO, RECOVERS BODIES OF HAWAIIAN PAIR

Japanese, in Tiny Cage, Works Eight Hours in Crater of Kilauea.

By the Associated Press.

HILLO, Hawaii, June 13.—A Japanese descended into the Halemau-mau crater of Mount Kilauea yesterday and recovered the bodies of a young Portuguese and the girl he killed. The Portuguese had leaped into the volcano with the body of the girl.

The Japanese, Rikan Kunishi, made the descent in a tiny cage suspended from a cable stretched across the pit. Kunishi would have plunged into the lava 1200 feet below had the cable broken.

Shortly after he reached the ledge 300 feet below, on which the bodies lay, he signaled with a white flag that his trip would be successful. He returned eight hours later with the bodies strapped to his cage and claimed the $1000 for which he contracted to do the job. S. J. Hines, 39 years old, kidnapped and shot Margaret Enos, 17, on June 2, because she refused to marry him, and then leaped into the volcano with the girl's body. Workmen spent days in arranging the cables and preparing the cage in which Kunishi descended.

AKRON MESSAGES PLANS FOR PARRIS ISLAND LANDING

Radio Dispatch From Selma, Ala.; Dirigible Has Smooth Sailing Over Texas This Time.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, June 13.—A message from the Akron received by the navy today, said the ship, then over Selma, Ala., would make an intermediary landing at Parris Island, S. C., late this afternoon.

DALLAS, Tex., June 13.—Compared to its stormy westward crossing of Texas on its way to the Pacific Coast, the return flight of the Navy dirigible Akron is a vacation for Lieutenant-Commander Charles E. Rosendahl and his 32 men.

The world's largest airship crossed the eastern border of the State early today and was reported over Shreveport, La., at 1:50 a. m. It entered Texas at El Paso about 9 a. m. Sunday. The ship left its west coast base at Sunnyvale, Cal., Saturday morning for Lakehurst, N. J.

Messages received at the Naval Radio Station at Los Angeles said the Akron put two planes overboard to lighten the load at the higher altitudes. They preceded the dirigible to El Paso and then were taken aboard again.

MUNICIPAL THEATER TICKETS EXEMPTED FROM FEDERAL TAX

Ruling Made by Collector Becker; Refund on Season Admissions.

Admissions to Municipal Opera performances were exempted from the Federal amusement tax of 10 per cent, which goes into effect June 21, under a ruling made today by the Internal Revenue Department.

A certificate of exemption was granted to the Municipal Theater Association by Collector of Internal Revenue Becker following publication of the regulations governing collection of the admissions tax imposed by the revenue act of 1932. The act provides that no tax is to be collected if the proceeds of the performances inure to a non-profit-making organization.

The association had collected tax on all of its season ticket sales. A record was kept of these payments and preparations were begun today for a refund to the several thousand season subscribers.

With the tax question settled the association has placed seats for all remaining performances of the current season on sale in its downtown ticket office in the Arcade Building.

ALLEGED KIDNAPER OF MRS. DONNELLY BACK FROM AFRICA

Man Named as Leader of Gang Confesses to Detectives on Way Home, They Say.

WAS TRAILO TO JOHANNESBURG

Prisoner Is Expected to Reach Kansas City Thursday by Auto in Custody of Police.

By the Associated Press.

PHILADELPHIA, June 13.—Martin Dewey is on his way back to Kansas City today in the custody of authorities who said he had admitted participating in the kidnapping last December of Mrs. Nell Q. Donnelly, dress manufacturer.

He was brought back from South Africa yesterday, after a quest that led half way around the world. The automobile carrying him westward is expected to reach Kansas City Thursday.

Dewey, whose real name is said to be Martin Dewey, fled from Kansas City almost six months ago, after Mrs. Donnelly had been released by the gang of eight that had demanded $75,000 ransom.

"Well, fellows, I did it," detectives quoted Dewey as saying, "but I was led in on it at the last minute and did not arrange it; I didn't even know who was going to be kidnapped."

Will Plead Not Guilty. Dewey told detectives that he would plead not guilty, however, and said he was not afraid, although he knows that kidnapping is a capital offense in Missouri.

"I'll probably get the noose," he was quoted as saying, "but I'm not afraid to die."

As he came down the gangplank of the steamer West Cawthon, Dewey weighed just 50 pounds less than on the day he fled Kansas City.

He expressed relief, according to James R. Page, Prosecuting Attorney of Jackson County, Missouri, that he was on his way back to face the abduction charges.

Page said that Dewey had confessed to Kansas City detectives, T. J. Higgins and E. K. Cole, as the steamer came up the Delaware River, that he had been "in on the kidnapping."

Asked to name the others in the gang, Dewey was said by Page to have answered that "Browning knows more than I do," and refused to implicate anybody else. Lacy Browning, now under arrest in Kansas City with three others, is said by Page to have confessed participating in the crime, but to have named Dewey as the leader of the gang.

Others Under Arrest. Others under arrest are Paul Scheldt, also said to have confessed; Charles Mele and Dewey's second wife, Ethel. Three others, two believed to be Pennsylvanians, are being sought.

The kidnapping occurred Dec. 16, but Mrs. Donnelly was released on Dec. 18, following the interception of former United States Senator James Reed, her attorney.

Knowing that Mrs. Dewey had been employed as a nurse at the Donnelly home, detectives started their search for Dewey on Dec. 19, following a trail of buses on which Dewey traveled eastward to Buffalo, then to Scranton and Bloomsburg, Pa., and finally to Philadelphia and Chester, where Dewey became a member of "the crew" of the steamer City of New York and worked his way to Johannesburg, South Africa, where he deserted the ship.

When they learned he was wanted here, South Africa officials deported him as an alien and he arrived here, in the custody of two guards, after a month's voyage.

CAUCUS DECISION IS UNANIMOUS

Empire State Group at Chicago Places Treasury Secretary Mills on Resolutions Committee.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, June 13.—New York's 97 delegates to the Republican national convention without a dissenting voice put Secretary of the Treasury Mills, of President Hoover's official family, on the Resolutions Committee at its caucus last night. But before the Treasury head could leave the room with his formal qualifications, the delegation quickly adopted a resolution for repeal unconditionally.

The resolution read: "It is the sense of the New York delegation that the eighteenth amendment be resubmitted to the people of the United States as follows:

"That the Congress of the United States propose the repeal of the said amendment with the provision that the several states pass upon said question by conventions duly called and it is the sense of the New York delegation that we further recommend that delegates to the several state conventions be chosen at special elections rather than at general elections."

Edge Submits His Repeal Plan to New Jersey Delegates.

ABOARD NEW JERSEY SPECIAL TRAIN, June 13.—A prohibition plank calling for repeal of the eighteenth amendment but providing for Federal aid for those states desiring to remain dry was submitted today by Ambassador Walter Edge to the New Jersey delegation for consideration.

Edge said he had in mind only the "fundamentals" of such a plank which would be prepared for submission to the convention resolutions committee after he had obtained the views of his fellow delegates.

Pennsylvania Expected to Take Wringing Wet Stand.

CHICAGO, June 13.—Pennsylvania's Republican delegation to the national convention appears today on the threshold of taking a "wringing wet" stand on prohibition.

Four plans, at least, will be offered when the delegation goes into caucus tonight, but the one expected to be adopted is that of James M. Hallett of Philadelphia, spokesman on the subject for William S. Vane, who is forced to stay at home because of illness. Vane's lieutenants say the plan is thoroughly "wet."

Samuel Hardan Church, president of Carnegie Institute, brought with him a resolution calling on Congress to submit to the states the question of immediate repeal of the dry law with states to control liquor thereafter.

WOMAN FALLS THROUGH SECOND FLOOR WINDOW

Mrs. Charles Heide Lands on Canopy at Vandervoort's; Passer-by Cut by Glass.

Mrs. Charles Heide, wife of the manager of the Mayfair Hotel, fell through a plate glass window on the second floor of the Scruggs-Vandervoort-Barney store this afternoon, landing on a canopy over the Ninth street basement entrance.

She was taken to the Mayfair Hotel, suffering from shock and cuts and bruises. Bob Jessen, a professional wrestler, who was passing under the canopy, was cut on the leg by falling glass. Jessen lives at 2330 Olive street.

Mrs. Heide had been in a small dressing room trying on a pair of beach pajamas, and apparently stumbled over a small ledge which rises eight inches from the floor under the window.

Heide is president of the Mayfair Investment Co., which built that hotel, and of the Helms Hotel Co., which built the Lenox. Both are in process of reorganization for the benefit of bondholders.

G. O. P. Convention Sidelights

By PAUL V. ANDERSON, A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

CHICAGO, June 13.

DR. NICHOLAS MURRAY BUTLER has succeeded in injecting some life and spirit into what has thus far been one of the dullest pre-convention gatherings ever seen.

By demanding a straightforward stand on the question of prohibition repeal, and by dismissing the administration's "resubmission" proposal as "quite ridiculous," the militant university president is causing the administration far more worry than it has bargained for.

Republicans, unlike Democrats, usually manage to smooth out their family differences behind closed doors, but it will be difficult this time, Mr. Hoover is not quite ready to abandon the "noble experiment," and it does not appear that anything short of that will satisfy Dr. Butler.

By demanding a straightforward stand on the question of prohibition repeal, and by dismissing the administration's "resubmission" proposal as "quite ridiculous," the militant university president is causing the administration far more worry than it has bargained for.

Among the despairing dries there lingers a faint hope that Senator Borah will appear suddenly on the scene and stem the wet advance. It is a possibility, but Borah told this writer three days ago that he "hadn't the slightest intention of going near the place."

That Borah could blink up a very devil of a row is universally conceded. He is a master of the dramatic, and nobody in the convention can match him in debate. On the other hand, he is thoroughly disinterested with the attitude of the administration, not merely on prohibition, but also on economic questions, and it will be extremely difficult to persuade him to have anything to do with the convention.

He has virtually washed his hands of it.

Before Dr. Butler's arrival the chief subject of interest among delegates to the Republican convention was the Democratic convention. They talked more about it than about their own, and exhibited more curiosity about its probable actions. I find the feeling still prevalent that Roosevelt can't be "stopped" except at the cost of disrupting the party and rendering the nomination worthless to anyone else.

There has been much talk of taunting Vice President Curtis on the Republican ticket with someone able to inspire more enthusiasm, but the movement is not likely to succeed.

There is a feeling that the social activities of "Fag Charlie" and his sister, Mrs. Dolly Gann, and the "providence" row which received

'RESUBMISSIONISTS' IN 'SHIVER OF FEAR'

Seems Probable They May Prevail; Dry Leaders Declared "Not Unreasonable" in Face of Certain Change in Party Attitude.

By CHARLES G. ROSS, Chief Washington Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

CHICAGO, June 13.—The wet band wagon rolled along merrily today, gathering impetus as the time for the opening of the National Republican Convention tomorrow morning drew near. Wetness was in the air.

The whole "feel" of the convention was sharply different from that which marked the proceedings four and eight years ago. The dries then were in control and they rode ruthlessly over the opposition. Today the dries are putting up a last-ditch defense. They are doomed to defeat, and the only question is how much they will be able to salvage out of the wreckage.

Seventy-five dry leaders, representing the allied dry forces, met today to decide upon their course of action before the Resolutions Committee. They are to meet again late this afternoon. Former Gov. Henry J. Allen of Kansas, who is regarded as a spokesman for the administration point of view, reasoned with them in an effort to draw them from their extreme dry position.

Allen, it leaked out, found them "not unreasonable." They were in a chastened mood.

Allen has a plan. It is for a substitute amendment that would permit the wet states to take themselves out from under the eighteenth amendment. Any state doing this would come under the control of congressional regulatory measures to prevent the return of the saloon. This is the general idea that he has in mind as a sort of middle ground between the extreme dry position and the demand for unqualified repeal.

But the exact wording of this or any other proposal, as has been stated in this correspondence, is of small consequence. The significant thing is simply that the party has moved away from the dries. Whatever "whether" this convention may adopt, whether it be for mere resubmission or for submission with a recommendation of repeal, it will represent a far retreat from the previous dry stand of the party.

The New York Attitude. The bandwagon got a push from the action of the New York State delegation last night in voting, without any dissent from the 97 members, for a resolution putting the delegation on record for the submission of a repeal plank to the people.

The dries and the so-called "resubmissionists" professed to take comfort from the

MISSOURI G. O. P. DELEGATES DODGE PROHIBITION VOTE

St. Louis Group Led by Charles Nagel Opposes Selection of Hyde for Platform Committee.

CABINET MAN WINS PLACE BY 24 TO 13

Hank Weeke Warns "If We Don't Go Wet," Democrats Will Carry City Overwhelmingly.

By CURTIS A. BETTS,
A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

CHICAGO, June 13.—The Missouri delegation to the Republican National Convention ducked and dodged a stand on prohibition repeal, at its meeting today. Charles Nagel and the other delegates from St. Louis attempted to obtain an expression, but under the leadership of Chairman Curtis, the State Committee delegation refused even to vote on the question.

The St. Louis delegates entered the delegation meeting at the Morrison Hotel with a determination to put the subject squarely up to the delegates, first, by opposing Secretary of Agriculture Hyde for membership on the convention Platform Committee with Nagel, and second, by attempting to have the delegation go on record in support of the unanimous action of the New York delegation in proposing that re submission should be in the form of an amendment to repeal the eighteenth amendment. And that the states should consider ratification of the repeal in convention and not in their legislatures.

Fully realizing that neither move would be successful, but with the view of making it clear that the election of Hyde, a dry, was not the unanimous action of the delegation, Nagel agreed to being used to oppose Hyde.

Hyde 24, Nagel 13.

Thirty-six of the 41 Missouri delegates were in attendance, or were represented by alternates. On a secret ballot, Hyde received 24 votes, and Nagel 13, four not voting. The vote does not indicate the exact number of votes inasmuch as district delegates in the convention will have only three-fourths of a vote each, delegates-at-large each having a full vote. In the delegation meeting, however, each counted as a full vote.

Immediately after Hyde was selected for the Platform Committee, Nagel offered a motion to the effect that "the Missouri member of the Platform Committee be requested to support the resolution adopted by the New York delegation."

Nagel precipitated a controversy which continued for more than an hour and concluded with the perfectly innocuous action of the adoption of a substitute offered by Curtis, by which the delegates reaffirmed the action of the Republican State convention in St. Louis. The State convention action was merely a declaration of the right of the people to change their laws and Constitution whenever they desired, and favored the calling of a national convention by Congress "to deal with the whole subject."

Weeke Warns Delegates.

The disgust with which the action of the delegation was received by the St. Louisans and the few others who voted with them was expressed by Hank Weeke, who immediately was on his feet with the exclamation: "I won't be going unless we get the call to go. I am bound by any caucus. If they don't give us wet, St. Louis will go Democratic by an overwhelming majority."

The pussyfooters on the delegation came to the front immediately with objections raised by William E. Byers, chairman of the Jackson County Republican Committee, and a delegate-at-large, and by Frank Crowell of Kansas City, a Fifth District delegate.

Nagel's motion was perhaps unfortunately worded, as it afforded the opportunity for opponents to deliver Fourth of July speeches, proclaiming the grandeur and independence of Missouri, and its refusal to "hang on to the caustic of New York."

A Plea for Party Unity.

While Crowell insisted that Hyde should not be bound by anything New York did, Byers placed his objections largely on the ground of party unity and harmony. Insisting that Republicans should get together for the re-election of Hoover and should not permit themselves to be divided on the issue of prohibition or any other issue, he said the country was neither all wet nor all dry.

He offered his proposal for the solution of the question. It was that it should be left to the states separately to determine whether it should be all wet or all dry, whether it wanted 1 per cent or 7 per cent beer, or whether it wanted "hard liquor," and that interstate shipment of intoxicating liquors should be prohibited. He did not go into the question of the method to be employed to bring it all about.

At this stage of the discussion W. A. Mussetter, a dry delegate

Leaders of Missouri Delegation

from La Grange in the First District, sought to end the whole matter by a motion to lay Nagel's motion on the table, but he did not get a second, and Nagel explained that the whole object of those who wished a change was to turn control of liquor over to the state.

"My object in offering my motion," he said, "was that there might be harmony of action. I thought possibly that when New York selected Ogden Mills, a member of the President's Cabinet, as its member of the Platform Committee, that an agreement had been reached. If the language of my motion is objectionable, I would be willing to change it so that it would simply declare that it was the sense of the Missouri delegation that the New York resolution expresses properly the manner in which the subject should be submitted."

Orthwein Supports Nagel.

William K. Orthwein, a St. Louis delegate, supported Nagel, with the statement that lawyers were agreed that the eighteenth amendment could not legally be re submitted, and that re submission could only take the form of an amendment to repeal the eighteenth amendment. Nagel said he believed that was a correct statement of the legal position of the matter.

Col. John D. McNeely, a delegate from St. Joseph, and Dewey Short of Galena, from the fourteenth, who also is a candidate for the Republican nomination for the United States Senate, opposed avoidance of the issue. Short said that in his opinion it must be settled, and that he "should not side-step, pussyfoot or straddle." He said he believed the method set out in the New York resolution was the proper one for submission.

After Nagel had amended his motion to change it from a request to Hyde that he support the New York stand to a statement that it was the sense of the delegation that the New York resolution expressed the proper manner for submission, Curtis came forward with a substitute which meant nothing except avoidance of a position.

Reaffirms State Platform.

As it stands the delegation merely reaffirms this platform declaration of the Missouri delegation, which was admitted at the time to be merely a sop to the wets. It read:

"We believe that a political party should have the courage to define its position on any public question of importance. We recognize that one of the fundamental principles of constitutional government is the right of the people in a constitutional manner to change or alter that constitution or any laws made in pursuance thereof at any time."

"The Republican party having always believed in this principle and recognizing that wide differences of opinion exist among our people with reference to the eighteenth amendment and the enabling acts thereunder enacted, we favor a national convention to be called as speedily as possible, in accordance with the Federal Constitution to deal with the whole subject and we recommend that Congress shall specifically in its call for such convention limit the powers of such convention to the subject above named."

Caulfield Heads Delegation.

On the vote on Curtis' substitute, the drys, augmented by the political ostriches, mustered 33 votes for the substitute. The wets had only nine votes against it.

Before taking up the election of Hyde to the Platform Committee and Nagel's motion, the delegates elected Gov. Caulfield chairman of the delegation, and elected Mrs. Helen Lang Rogers of Carthage, secretary of the State Committee, secretary of the delegation.

Byers was chosen as the member of the Credentials Committee of the national convention, Mr. Pearl Gehrig of Salisbury, member of the Permanent Organization Committee, and Curtis member of the Committee on Rules and order of business.

Dr. Clements Re-elected.

The Missouri delegation unanimously re-elected Dr. E. B. Clements of Macon as Republican National Committeeman and unanimously re-elected Mrs. Grace Semple Burlingham of St. Louis as Republican National Committeewoman. The election is for four years and this will be the third term for each.

Mrs. John Wyeth of St. Joseph was elected as Missouri's honorary vice president of the convention. Mr. E. Gillies of Menett was elected a member of the convention committee to notify the presidential nominee after his nomination, and Mrs. A. D. Ludlow of Kansas City was elected a member of a similar committee which will notify the vice presidential nominee.

so much publicity, have tended to bring ridicule on the administration. Curtis, a Kansas dry, will pull no votes in the East.

However, the administration is committed to him, and general political strategy probably will dictate his re nomination. Besides, with the exception of Curtis and Mrs. Gann, nobody can work up much feeling on the subject. One old guard leader remarked cynically: "What difference does it make who is beaten for Vice-President?"

I haven't seen a Hoover picture or a Hoover banner. One correspondent insists jokingly that he has spent two days interviewing delegates in a vain endeavor to find one who will say a good word for the party chief. It is a pretty dismal affair.

On the train on which I came from Washington were three Cabinet members—Secretary of State Stimson, Secretary of Agriculture Hyde and Secretary of Labor Dock. Stimson spent most of his time in the morning, looking at the "Unknown War." Perhaps he was seeking to discover what happened to "the forgotten man."

Hyde devoted himself extensively to newspapers. There was a rather widespread belief that the white envelope in his coat pocket contained President Hoover's plank on prohibition.

Dock circulated freely among politicians and newspaper men on the train, shaking hands, slapping backs, telling stories and laughing in loud tones.

CORRESPONDENTS were unanimously of the opinion that in leaving Washington for Chicago they probably were leaving the real story behind them. Everyone speculated on the meaning of the Saturday night conference at the White House and President Hoover's startling announcement of a $200,000,000 deficit after the budget was supposed to be balanced. Either Secretary Miller's previous estimates of revenue have

BONUS FORCE LIVING IN MUD AT CAPITAL

Drizzle Increases Sick List—
17 Despondent Men Ask to Go Home.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, June 13.—The open fields on which most of the bonus-seeking World War veterans are quartered, were turned into quagmires by soaking rains. Only a few of the men spent last night under the roofs of empty buildings or crude shelters, or huddled in automobiles and tents. The rest were forced to stand in the rain, having not even coats or blankets to protect them.

A drizzling rain rapidly increased the veterans' sick list today and scores besieged the headquarters of the marine medical detail near police headquarters for attention. Two overworked physicians estimated the marine unit would take care of 500 cases during the day.

A despondent group of 17 veterans sent an emissary to Police Superintendent Glassford today to take them by truck toward their homes.

A "bomb" found near a billet of the bonus force yesterday was an old Mills hand grenade, from which the powder and cap had been removed. Police said they thought it was a relic brought along out of sentiment.

Speaking from the top of a taxicab, Senator J. Hamilton Lewis of Illinois addressed a turbulent crowd of veterans at a camp yesterday and talked them down after being heckled. He visited the encampment to see what he could do to supply the Illinois veterans with food and shelter.

A milling, excited throng of 1500 veterans swarmed around the Senator, who last week engaged in an altercation with a threatening group of ex-service men at the Capitol and finally, exasperated, advised them to "go to hell."

The Senator had to shout to be heard above the crowd, which interrupted him time and time with a demand that he state his position on the bonus.

Lewis told them the important matter at the moment was to get them supplied with adequate food, shelter, coats and other equipment to keep them off the ground and avert an outbreak of fever. The men responded that they first wanted to "know about the bonus."

"The bonus is a matter you will hear about," Lewis shouted back. He said he wanted them to remember they, like himself, were soldiers and to conduct themselves as such. The audience quieted somewhat as Lewis proceeded. He said he would try to get supplies through the War Department or other Government agencies. He departed he received a great cheer.

Chicago hotel keepers and merchants are fulfilling their pledge not to increase prices during the convention period, but the bootleggers have not kept faith. I am informed by Prof. Henry I. Mencken, the celebrated connoisseur and thinker, that beer and whisky prices are exactly twice as high here as in Baltimore. This may have the effect of deepening resentment against the eighteenth amendment.

Wets Threaten Convention Fight for Outright Repeal

be the big and perhaps the only real fight in the convention. Save for the possibility that Vice President Curtis will be denied renomination, the impending wet-and-dry tempest is practically the only convention topic that the delegates are talking about.

The battle of the outright wets for a repeal, instead of a "re submission" plank took form and substance yesterday with the arrival of Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler, president of Columbia University and a long time crusader in the repeal cause. Dr. Butler brought with him his repeal plank, the publication of which a few days ago prompted the anti-dry statement of John D. Rockefeller Jr.

Butler denounced "hypocritical" and "straddling" measures in dealing with the prohibition question, and declared that if the platform makers presented a plank that sought to dodge or confuse the issue he would seek amendment on the floor of the convention. Delegates from 31 states, he said, had assured him they would join in a demand for a roll call to put the convention on record.

Senator Bingham for Repeal.

Another leader in the repeal movement, Senator Hiram Bingham of Connecticut, announced today that he would urge in the resolutions committee of which he is a member, the adoption of a "clear, concise and explicit plank" putting the party on record for repeal of the dry amendment and the immediate liberalization of the Volstead act.

"I am not so much concerned about the modification part of it," said Bingham. "The essential thing is to get a plank for repeal of the amendment. To suggest a substitute would be a waste of time; it will be the duty of Congress to work out the details."

Prohibition has been a failure. Let us have done with wets and wets and pussyfooting and come out for repeal."

The 19 members of the Connecticut delegation, said the Senator, would stand with him as a unit for repeal.

"You can rest assured," he went on, "that if the majority of the Resolutions Committee turns down the repeal plank, there will be a minority report from the committee. The issue will be fought out on the floor of the convention."

Administration Attitude.

In the meantime leaders, presumed to know the administration mind, continued to talk for a "re submission" plank without mention of the dry repeal. The wets, it seemed probable that their counsel would prevail, though, as stated in this correspondence yesterday, some of them were in a shiver of fear lest the convention be stampeded into the repeal.

Allen predicted that the "extremists" on both sides of the prohibition question would be defeated. Allen hooted at the idea that the gathering might be stampeded for repeal. "The most exciting thing in the convention," said Allen, "is likely to be the chaplain's prayer."

Others joined Allen in his wishful thinking, but were not quite so optimistic as to the ability of the convention in line. The timorous ones would have welcomed a direct word of guidance from the White House. This word was lacking. Though it was generally understood that Mr. Hoover had agreed to a re submission plank and was opposed to any further degree of wetness, there was still no direct and public expression of his views. He has never amplified his campaign statement about the "experiment noble in motive"—which may or may not mean that he likes prohibition.

Air of Indecision.

This failure on the part of the President to make known his opinion on the most contentious issue before the American people is one of the strange phenomena of our politics, and it is especially noticeable here in a convention which is strictly Mr. Hoover's "show." The fact that the delegates don't know for certain what the President thinks about prohibition and about the effort to unseat Curtis, and are still in the dark as to his choice for the next National Committee chairman, gives this convention an air of indecision that is unusual in national Republican gatherings. Unfriendly commentators have remarked that this indecision is a reflection of an unfortunate quality in the Hoover administration.

Congressman Bertrand Snell of New York, the leader of the more Republicans in the House, who is slated to be permanent chairman of the convention, is among the organization spokesmen who are saying, presumably with the concurrence of the President, that the platform should go no further than a declaration for re submission.

"A clean-cut submission pledge should satisfy a majority of the convention," said Snell.

Col. Anderson's Views.

Col. Henry W. Anderson of Richmond, who is to be the Virginia member of the Resolutions Committee, will lay before it the liquor control plan which he advocated at a meeting of the Wickersham Commission.

Anderson said it would be unwise for the party to go before the country on a straight-out repeal plank. The Government, he said, must take steps to prevent wet states from flooding wet-dry states with liquor. His plan would include a prohibition against the return of the saloon and a restriction on the amount of liquor that might be sold to an individual.

The prohibition fight will begin in the Resolutions Committee after the opening session of the convention tomorrow, and the report of the committee to the convention will touch off the fireworks on the floor.

NEW YORK, June 13.—The widow of Reginald Vanderbilt now has an income of only $1400 a year, platform speaker today by George W. Wickersham, guardian for her eight-year-old daughter, Gloria Laura Morgan Vanderbilt. It had been assumed when the Vanderbilt will was probated in 1925 that "the entire residuary estate" left to Mrs. Vanderbilt after a trust fund was provided for the child was large. When debts and expenses were paid, however, the total was only about $100,000.

Wickersham made the disclosure in asking Surrogate's Court to grant a continuance of the $4000 monthly allowance for support of the child. The trust fund for the child was worth $2,734,137 last Dec. 31. It produced in 1931 an income of $113,678.

DEMOCRATS DEMAND PRESIDENT SPECIFY DESIRED ECONOMIES

and James Douglas, Assistant Secretary of the Treasury, who were White House guests. Secretary Hurley was summoned later.

Much depends on the outcome of the economy bill conference, which was resumed this morning. Chairman McDuffie, Democrat, of the House group, is pressing for abandonment of the Hoover fourfold plan of reducing the Federal payroll outlay. He favors restoration of the flat pay cut, which is figured to save many millions more. McDuffie is bitter about the latest word from the White House, asserting the President is injecting partisanship by conferring with Republicans alone.

Democratic Criticism.

The statement by administration leaders that the new revenue and economy bills would lack $150,000,000 to $300,000,000 of balancing the budget drew sharp criticism from House Democrats.

Representative Rainey of Illinois, House Democratic leader, told newspaper men the Treasury's "gross incompetence has been shown by the estimate that $150,000,000 to $300,000,000 more is needed to balance the budget."

He added that it was his opinion this new estimated deficit could be met only by additional taxes. But Representative Cripps said in an interview that he saw "no need for more taxes."

"It would be a simple matter just to pass a resolution saying that the expenditures of all Government departments shall be cut 5 per cent," he said. "We could leave it to the heads of the departments as to where the cuts should be made, and save that money without any trouble."

"The people have had enough taxes saddled on them by this Congress," Rainey held the "difficulties can best be met by taking out of the law some of the nuisance and excessive taxes before they become effective and replacing them with a sensible general sales tax."

"We've got to raise the money somehow," he said. "We can't do it by economy. It's a question of the taxes is about the only chance we have left."

"One Dole After Another."

Rainey asserted that Congress this session has "approved one dole after another but has done nothing to stimulate employment, put men to work and give them an income."

"The only thing we can hope so far is that these palliatives will keep the patient alive until somebody else gets in the White House," he said. "We aren't going to put men to work until the White House visions the necessity of a general building program. The only thing the White House visions now is the campaign and the fact that the President (Hoover) wants to be re-elected."

Action to Save $50,000,000.

The House voted today to amend the new revenue law so that excise taxes can be collected on purchases contracted for but not delivered before June 21. The resolution, sponsored by Representative Cripps, was approved to prevent the placing of large orders before June 21, the date new taxes are effective, for delivery after that date and thus avoid payment of the excise tax. Cripps explained that it would prevent the loss of approximately $50,000,000 which the manufacturers excise taxes were originally estimated to produce.

Senate's Heavy Load.

The Senate is driving forward with a heavy load of legislation, tackling first the controversial problem of farm relief. Chairman McNary of the Agriculture Committee expects approval of his bill to give the Farm Board power to use either export debenture, equalization fee or the allotment plan for disposing of crop surpluses.

Legislation to strengthen the agricultural marketing act was demanded by McNary in opening debate on his three-way bill today. He explained the features of his bill. "It is the judgment of the committee," McNary said, "that the marketing act should be strengthened to provide for marketing agricultural surpluses. The surplus problem will be here as long as we have surplus commodities and the board has no authority to handle them."

McNary said the allotment plan was in a measure a "price fixing device," but pointed out it was highly endorsed by the Farmers' Union.

A night session has been ordered to consider Philippine independence, but a vote is not expected to be reached.

One of the biggest problems is that of reaching an agreement on unemployment relief legislation. The House has sent the $2,500,000,000 Garner bill to the Senate, and the Senate has sent back an emergency $300,000,000 bill for relief loans to states. Leaders are confident, however, that a compromise will be reached.

Representatives of St. Louis who were in Washington last week to advocate direct Federal relief measures returned with some hope that the Wagner bill, authorizing relief loans to states, may be amended to provide also for outright grants in emergencies.

E. G. Steger, director of the Community Fund, said Congressmen Cochran had agreed to support such legislation and had reported a favorable sentiment for it among his colleagues. City Counselor Muench, who, with Steger and Arthur C. Meyer, of the Comptroller's office, comprised the St. Louis delegation, also was hopeful that the proposal might be adopted.

The Wagner bill, passed by the Senate, authorizes the Reconstruction Finance Corporation to lend $300,000,000 to the states for relief purposes. The Garner bill, passed by the House, provides for outright grants of $100,000,000 to the states. The St. Louisans urged that the Wagner bill, regarded as likely to pass, be amended to provide for $100,000,000 in emergency grants in addition to the $300,000,000 in loans.

Such legislation, in Steger's opinion, would solve the problem which confronts Missouri and five other states which have constitutional restrictions making it difficult or impossible for them to participate in the loans to be made available by the Wagner bill.

If the $100,000,000 emergency grant provision should be incorporated in the relief bill as passed, St. Louis' share on the basis of its population, would be about $600,000, Steger said. That amount, he thought, would enable the city to carry on its relief program until something else could be worked out.

Missouri could borrow under the Wagner bill, Muench said, only after the Governor had agreed that he would submit to the next Legislature legislation which would authorize the State to negotiate such loans. Gov. Caulfield is unwilling to do this, Muench said, because his term will expire before the next session of the Legislature in January.

Director Byrns Says Funds Are Adequate for Relief Work.

Considerations which led to the decision of Citizens' Committee of Relief and Employment to accept after controversy were discussed by E. H. Byrns, director general of the committee, in the Community Forum period on station KMO yesterday.

The committee now lacks funds to pay obligations incurred in the manner that Byrns said, the committee must get grants not loaned from the Federal Government. Byrns said:

The Wagner bill, authorizing reconstruction Finance Corporation to lend $300,000,000 to the states for relief, would be no immediate benefit to St. Louis. Byrns thought:

Says Amount Is Insufficient.

"Then, too," Byrns said, "the $300,000,000 appropriation is obviously inadequate to meet the needs of this sum contemplates our caring for more than 35 per cent of the number of unemployed to whom we have no method of determining the remainder will require our help."

The Citizens' Application Bureau at 2323 Washington avenue, the Employment Bureau at Washington avenue, would re-

chases contracted for but not delivered before June 21. The resolution, sponsored by Representative Cripps, was approved to prevent the placing of large orders before June 21, the date new taxes are effective, for delivery after that date and thus avoid payment of the excise tax. SEEKS TO AMEND WAGNER MEASURE

Wants Outright Grant of Money Instead of Loan Which Missouri Constitution Bars.

Representatives of St. Louis who were in Washington last week to advocate direct federal relief measures returned with some hope that the Wagner bill, authorizing relief loans to states, may be amended to provide aid for outright grants in emergencies.

E. G. Steger, director of the Community Fund, said Congressmen Cochran and McNamara had agreed to support such legislation and had reported a favorable sentiment for it among his colleagues. Director Byrns Says Funds Are Inadequate for Relief Work.

Considerations which led to the decision of Citizens' Committee on Relief and Employment to accept to new applications for assistance after tomorrow were discussed by H. H. Byrns, director general of the committee, in the Community Forum period on station KMOX yesterday.

The committee now lacks funds to pay obligations incurred last month, Byrns said. To meet those bills, he said it would need $185,000 of the $300,000 appropriated by the city Friday. The remainder, $115,000, plus monthly collections from the campaign of last fall and the Crisis Campaign, would be sufficient to meet June expenditures, Byrns said, only if no new cases were accepted after tomorrow.

To Reduce Number Aided.

In addition to denying new applications, Byrns said, the committee must begin to eliminate some of the families now being helped so that by July 15 it will be assisting only 10,000 families instead of 25,000.

"This will leave about 60,000 people with no resources against hunger other than those one does not wish to contemplate," Byrns said. "And still the picture of despair is not complete. During the past month our daily intake represented 200 families. So each day that we are compelled to deny help the ranks of the distressed will be increased by that number at least."

open, Byrns said. Families may register for relief at the application bureau and will receive whatever help can be given in the way of advice and direction.

The Employment Bureau, Byrns said, was meeting with better success in finding jobs than at any time before in the last year and a half, although the number of jobs found is "pitifully small" compared to the number of registrations.

The daily average of applicants for employment last month was 377, Byrns said, and the average number of placements was 38. "Yet we feel encouraged," he said, "as this number is twice what it was six months ago. We feel that the reason for this is not that business is picking up, but that we have enlarged and strengthened our department to reach a larger number of employers."

York, announced that he would vote against the discharge motion because the bonus cash would not solve a single problem that confronts the country today.

"I will not be a party," he said, "to a plan to sacrifice the veterans for inflated currency. Within eight weeks after the veterans got the money, we'd be in the same position we are today."

Patman Defends Payments.

Closing the debate, Patman declared that under the Owen plan the $2,500,000,000 payment to the veterans would not throw this country off the gold standard.

"If we pass this bill," he said, "the money will go to 10 times more people than would benefit by a public works program for the same amount. The money will be spent in this country—not abroad—and it will help us get a fair price for our wheat, cotton, corn and other agricultural products."

The Missouri delegation divided, 9 to 6, on the discharge motion. Those voting for the motion were: Barton, Cochran, Dickinson, Fulbright, Johnson, Loefer, Romjue, Shannon and Williams, all Democrats. Those voting against were: Cannon and Milligan (Dem.), and Dyer, Hopkins, Manlove and Nieldinghaus (Rep.). Representative Nelson is not in Washington. He was not paired.

Representatives Cochran and Loefer announced that, while they voted to discharge the Rules Committee, they would vote against the Patman bill. Both said they favored at this time a full discussion of bonus proposals.

M'QUILLAN ON TRIAL FOR NARCOTIC SALE

Informant Testifies He Bought Morphine From "Bow-Wow" Twice.

Trial of William P. McQuillan, known to his associates as "Bow-wow," and Henry Sierwaski, charged with sale of narcotics, began today before a jury in Federal Judge Davis' court.

The principal witness at the morning session was Earl Smith, an informant, who testified he purchased morphine from McQuillan on two occasions and that on one Sierwaski delivered the narcotic after McQuillan had taken the money.

The first purchase was last July 29, Smith said. On that occasion, he testified, he went to McQuillan's filling station at Thirteenth street and Cass avenue with a Federal narcotic inspector, who watched the transaction from a distance, and gave McQuillan $90 for an ounce of morphine. He returned an hour later, Smith said, and McQuillan escorted him to McQuillan's home, 1304 Cass avenue, and there delivered the drug.

On the second occasion, according to Smith's testimony, he purchased three ounces for $300 which he gave McQuillan and received the morphine in a shed behind McQuillan's home a short time later. Sierwaski escorted him to the shed, the witness said, and handed over three one-ounce packages of morphine.

Paul Dillon, defense attorney, in a preliminary statement, told the jury he would prove that Smith came to his office a month ago and volunteered the information that he never had purchased morphine from McQuillan and had seen him only once in his life.

McQuillan is a former East Side gangster and was one of the proprietors of the Mounds Club, a gambling establishment, when it was operated on the Collinsville road.

BRITISH INDIGNANT OVER SUICIDE OF MORROW SERVANT

Labor Members of Parliament Seek Protest to U. S. Concerning Incident in Lindbergh Case.

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, June 13.—Labor members of Parliament have signified their intention of asking the British Government to make representations to the Government of the United States over the suicide of Violet Sharpe. They planned to make the request during a general questioning on the matter in the course of today's session.

London newspapers expressed indignation against New Jersey police. Some accused the officers of having "driven" the girl to suicide by their questioning in connection with the Lindbergh case. The Daily Herald, labor organ, accused them of "venting their chagrin at their failure in the Lindbergh case on a poor English servant girl."

The Telegraph, under the caption, "Diagnose the American Justice," charged the police with torturing her.

Scotland Yard officials again questioned Emily Sharpe, sister of the dead girl, at Beenhaim, England, yesterday. After the questioning, Inspector Howell said the case was ended and he was satisfied both Violet and Emily were "respectable girls."

"I know nothing of the kidnapping," Emily said, "and that's what I told the officers. They asked me to relate my whereabouts almost from the time I was born."

The Sharpe family cited instructions to the United States that a wreath of flowers be placed on Violet's grave.

It was stated at Government offices that the Sharpe tragedy was receiving official attention, but British authorities in New York had not been empowered to lodge a complaint.

New Jersey Governor Backs Police in Handling of Case.

TRENTON, N. J., June 13.—Gov. A. Harry Moore today issued a statement saying he stood "squarely behind" Col. H. Norman Schwarzkopf, Superintendent of State Police, in his handling of the investigation of the Lindbergh case.

The Governor conferred for nearly half an hour with Schwarzkopf and, at the close of the conversation, dictated what he termed his "one and only statement" in reply to criticism of State police, particularly their questioning of Violet Sharpe, waitress in the Morrow home, who killed herself Friday.

"I have talked with Col. Schwarzkopf," the Governor said, "and am satisfied that the police have done nothing anywhere nearly approaching so-called third degree, and I believe them in no way deserving censure; I stand squarely behind Col. Schwarzkopf in his efforts."

"Four written statements, each one conflicting with the others, were taken from the maid (Violet Sharpe) by the police, and on each occasion with persons present throughout the entire interview connected in no way with the police."

Earlier in the day, Senator Emerson L. Richards, Republican leader, had charged that "the Lindbergh case has been sloughed to make a Democratic holiday," and predicted the Senate would take the initiative in an investigation of police handling of the kidnapping.

Police Deny They Were at Fault in Waitress' Suicide.

By the Associated Press.

ALPINE, N. J., June 13.—New Jersey State police today denied charges, carried in the English press, that they had harried to death, or "driven to suicide," or exerted any undue pressure on Violet Sharpe, English maid, committed suicide by poison in the home of Mrs. Dwight W. Morrow Friday as police arrived to question her anew about her movements the night of March 1, the night the Lindbergh baby was kidnapped.

"There was never undue pressure brought to bear during her questioning by the police," Col. H. Norman Schwarzkopf, head of the State police, said. "On each of the four occasions members of the

REPORTS KIDNAPING THREAT

William Wynn Tells Police Purpose Is to Force Him to Quit Race for Re-election.

William Wynn, business agent of Building Laborers' Union No. 162, reported to police last night that he had been threatened with kidnapping and other injury if he did not withdraw his candidacy to succeed himself at the annual election of officers of the local union next Friday.

Wynn told police of the North Market Street District that since receiving threats recently, he no longer stays at his home, 3616 St. Louis avenue, but "keeps moving." He said there were several factions in the union, each supporting its own candidate for business agent, a salaried job.

Wynn was one of the union men picked up last week in the police investigation of the slaying of Ben and Clarence Dody, father and son employed as strikebreakers at the general material Co., where union chauffeurs, laborers and engineers are on strike in a wage dispute. Forty-one men taken into custody by police for questioning were released following an open verdict in the murders.

Morrow or Lindbergh households were present.

When police discovered the waitress had been out with a man named Ernie on the night of the kidnapping, they jumped to the conclusion that Ernie was Ernest Brinkert, married man, ex-convict and taxi driver, and they tried to connect Brinkert with the kidnapping. This theory did not stand up, however. A man named Ernest Miller came forward, saying he was Miss Sharpe's Ernie and Brinkert declared, and the police could not disprove that he was in Bridgeport, Conn., the night of March 1, and that he did not know Violet Sharpe.

Col. Schwarzkopf was asked: "In view of Ernest Miller's statement and Brinkert's alibi, do you still believe Violet Sharpe had guilty knowledge of the crime? Will you publicly exonerate her?" Schwarzkopf answered: "This is a matter of opinion."

Miller said it was possible Miss Sharpe's reluctance was due to the fact she was not certain of his full name.

"It may sound strange," said Miller when asked why he did not tell the officers his name, "but the truth is I didn't know she was dead. I didn't see a newspaper Friday and I didn't know a thing about it until somebody told me yesterday."

Schwarzkopf said poison taken by Miss Sharpe had been in the Morrow household for about three years and was ordinarily used in cleaning silverware.

Brinkert continued work on his written statement at the police headquarters. He said he had been in the Morrow household for about three years and was ordinarily used in cleaning silverware.

"He will conclude his written statement today," Schwarzkopf announced, "and has volunteered to stay at Alpine until it is completely verified."

Robert Burns, Detroit Suspect, Freed After Questioning.

By the Associated Press.

DETROIT, June 13.—Robert Burns, held for questioning since Friday in connection with the Lindbergh baby kidnapping, was released today. Burns was arrested when Detroit police said they were informed he was an acquaintance of Violet Sharpe. New Jersey police questioned him and said they were satisfied he knew nothing of the kidnapping.

POLICEMEN ASKED TO DONATE 10 PCT. OF PAY TO CHARITY

Proposal, Made in Place of Straight Cut, to Be Presented at Roll Calls Tomorrow.

Chief of Police Gerk, in a series of conferences with district police captains today, asked them to place before the policemen, at tomorrow's roll calls, a proposal that they shall donate 10 per cent of their salaries, from June 15 until the end of the 1932 fiscal year next April, for unemployment relief.

This proposal, which Chief Gerk presented to the captains in representing the wish of Gov. Caulfield and the new Police Board, would take the place of the 10 per cent voluntary reduction in police salaries, which was proposed to the former Police Board by city officials and was endorsed by Gov. Caulfield. The Governor's discussion of the matter with the board led to the resignations of two members, former Mayor Kreisemann and Daniel Bartlett, and to the naming of the new Police Board with Oliver T. Remmers as chairman in place of Henry W. Kiel, who resigned to run for the Republican senatorial nomination.

"Sounding Out Men."

The proposed 10 per cent pay cut, if put into effect at the beginning of June, was estimated to save the city $409,000 in police salaries for the remainder of the fiscal year. The proposed relief donations, starting a half-month later, would amount to about $390,000, according to estimates.

During the Crisis campaign in February, the Police Department pledged one day's pay for all members, a total of $13,394. This was in the previous fiscal year, and will not affect the pledges now asked.

Chairman Remmers today declined to say that the discussion of the matter by the Chief with the captains had any official sanction. He said the board had not acted on the question, and suggested that the Chief was "sounding out" the men.

As outlined by Chief Gerk to the captains, every member of the Police Department making more than $100 a month will be asked to sign an agreement to give 10 per cent of his salary, until next April, to the Citizens' Committee on Relief and Employment. This committee disburses relief funds appropriated by the city and the funds raised by private subscription in the Crisis Campaign, through the established relief agencies and through bureaus of its own.

The proposed contribution from the policemen would take the place of an equal sum which the city might otherwise have to appropriate to meet the continuing and growing needs of the Citizens' Committee.

Captains to Remind Men.

In presenting the proposal to the policemen, the captains were told to remind them that, unless there is a voluntary and temporary lessening of police salaries in this manner, the Legislature may be asked to make a permanent cut in police salaries, possibly in a greater degree than 10 per cent.

Another argument for the proposal is the 10 per cent cut in salaries in the 10 per cent cut of department appropriations and a 10 per cent reduction in firemen's pay was made.

QUOTES 'MACBETH' IN NOTE, ENDS LIFE WITH AUTO FUMES

Henry W. Gildehaus, 72, Wholesale Grocer, Found Dead in Garage at Rear of His Residence.

After writing a note in which he referred to the business depression and quoted from the writings of Shakespeare and Omar Khayyam, Henry W. Gildehaus, a wholesale grocer, ended his life with carbon monoxide in a garage at the rear of his home, 3424 Hawthorne boulevard, Saturday night. He was 72 years old.

A coroner's verdict of suicide was returned today.

The body, seated in a closed car, was found at midnight. The engine of the machine was running and a hose attached to the muffler carried the exhaust fumes inside the sedan. Police used an inhalator in an effort at resuscitation.

The note, found in Gildehaus' clothing, said "the severity and duration of this depression has upset my nerves, keyed too high. 'It is better that I go now, I've outlived my usefulness,' the note explained.

Following was this quotation from Shakespeare's "Macbeth": "Out, out brief candle! Life's but a walking shadow, a poor player that struts and frets his hour upon the stage, and then is heard no more."

From the Rubaiyat of Omar Khayyam Gildehaus quoted, "And that inverted bowl they call the sky, whereunder crawling cooped we live and die, lift not your hands to it for help—for it is impotently moves as you and I."

In the note Gildehaus directed that his funeral be private and that there be "no ostentation, no flowers and corpse gazing, no fears, mourning raiment or graveyard grimes."

Gildehaus was born in St. Louis and attended Washington University. His father was in the wholesale grocery business, and the son became the junior member of the firm of Fink, Nasse & Gildehaus. Subsequently the concern became H. W. Gildehaus & Co., 322 Spruce street. In a merger several years ago the name was changed to Gildehaus, Wulff & Co., and the business was moved to 15 South Second street.

In 1899 Gildehaus was elected president of the Missouri Wholesale Grocers' Association. He was formerly secretary of the Old Union Club, and in recent years was a member of the Board of Commissioners of Tower Grove Park.

Surviving are the widow, Mrs. Henrietta Dodge Gildehaus, and three sons, Ralph, Harry and Paul.

MAYOR SUPPORTING KRATKY IN U. S. SENATE PRIMARY

Comes Out for Lawyers Who Managed First Miller Campaign in 1925.

Mayor Miller, who announced three weeks ago that he was supporting only three candidates in the Republican primary campaign, added a fourth to his slate today.

The new one is Robert J. Kratky, lawyer, and candidate for United States Senator, who managed Miller's first campaign for Mayor, in 1925. Since then Krat-ky has been a frequent caller at city hall on political and private business. He habitually makes the Mayor's office his headquarters, leaving his hat there when visiting various departments.

Reporters asked the Mayor today whom he would support for Senator. "You know," he replied, "I couldn't be for Kiel." He referred to former Mayor Henry W. Kiel, one of the six Republican candidates. Kiel ran against Miller for the Mayorality nomination in a bitter contest in 1929, and Kiel is friendly to Gov. Caulfield, Collector

Koehn and other party leaders whom the Mayor dislikes.

The Mayor also is supporting Secretary of State Becker for Governor, Park Commissioner Pape for Sheriff and Marriage License Clerk George W. Hartman for re-election as Twenty-second Ward Republican Committeeman.

G. O. P. LEADERS GO TO CHICAGO CONVENTION ON SPECIAL TRAIN

Müller, Koehn, Schmoll and Pape Not to Attend Party Gathering.

A number of St. Louisans, several outstate Missouri delegates and seven East St. Louisans left for the Republican national convention at Chicago on a special Alton Railroad train at noon today.

Among the St. Louis party were former Mayor Kiel, candidate for United States Senator, and his daughter, Miss Edna Kiel; Postmaster Michener, Collector of Internal Revenue Becker, Theodore F. Lange, a new Police Commissioner; City Register Grosz and Martin J. Collins. They will join the Missouri delegation in the Morrison Hotel at Chicago.

Local party leaders who are not going to the convention, apparently for lack of interest, include Mayor Miller, Collector Koehn, Circuit Clerk Schmoll, Park Commissioner Pape, chairman of the Republican City Committee, and Edward W. Foristel. Gov. Caulfield and most of the Missouri delegates departed last night, as the delegation was called to a meeting in Chicago this morning. A number of St. Louis politicians made the trip by motor.

HEALTHY MAN SHOT DEAD AFTER WOUNDING BUTCHER

By the Associated Press.
CARLSBAD, Cal., June 12.—J. P. White, 52 years old, real estate operator, was shot to death by a State motorcycle officer yesterday after gravely wounding Ellis Zahnizer, 42, a butcher, and firing on two other men.
Carl Klindt, Sheriff's investigator, said a quarrel over a note led White to shoot Zahnizer three times. White fired on George Thompson when the latter attempted to disarm him in the street and later shot at E. H. Wilson, with whom Klindt said White had quarreled.

William P. Jensen, the motorcycle officer, too up the fight there. White fired three bullets at him. Jensen shot the real estate man between the eyes when he refused to surrender.

health before he arrives at New Orleans, probably in two weeks.

It was decided last night to abandon Hausner's red Bellanca monoplane, in which he drifted for a week after falling a few hundred miles short of the European coast. The plane was left drifting in 42°41'18" north latitude, 20°04' west longitude, where Hausner was rescued—that is, about 600 miles due west of Oporto, Portugal. Darkness falling shortly after the rescue made it impossible to pick up the plane.

An intimation of Hausner's exhaustion when picked up was given in the first radio message sent out by the Circe Shell and interpreted by the U. S. Navy.

The message did not give the flyer's name; inferentially he was unable to identify himself. The only identification was that of the plane—"Red Bellanca monoplane 7085."

It was Hausner's first attempt that Hausner had had a trying time during his six or seven days of drifting. The statement of Capt. Wilson of the Circe Shell that Hausner was unable to give a coherent account of his experience and the fact that only the tail of his plane was above water indicated a very close call.

When Hausner lifted his plane, loaded with 555 gallons of gasoline and 25 gallons of oil from the runway of Floyd Bennett Field, Brooklyn, the morning of June 2, he also had four chicken sandwiches, two ham sandwiches, several bars of chocolate, two apples and two oranges, a gallon of water and a container of black coffee.

He was reported sighted over Sydney, Nova Scotia, the evening of June 3, heading out to sea. That was the last word of him until Saturday night when the Circe Shell reported picking him up.

Wife Waits for Hausner; Says She Never Gave Up Hope.

By the Associated Press.
NEWARK, N. J., June 12.—"How long will it be before he is back?" was the first question of Mrs. Martha Hausner, 25-year-old bride of a year of Stanislaus Hausner, when told of his rescue from the sea yesterday off the coast of Portugal. Told the slow freighter Circe Shell probably would be two weeks on the way to New Orleans, she said she would wait in Jersey City for her husband's return.

She said she had prayed daily for his safety and had never given up hope. She refused to be concerned over reports that he was completely exhausted; that he was able to send her his love was enough, she said.

New Hope for German Flyer and Companion, Missing Since May 17.

By the Associated Press.
PERTH, West Australia, June 12.—Hope for the safety of Capt. Hans Bertram, German flyer, and his companion, missing since May 17, was revived today, when some natives handed to Father Cubero of the Drysdale Mission a bag, a handkerchief initialed "H. B." and a cigarette case on which was scratched a message in German.

The natives said they found footprints of two men proceeding southward 100 miles northeast of Wyndham.

Nothing has been heard from Bertram since he took off from Kupang, Timor Island, across the Timor Sea, for Port Darwin, Australia.

LINKS DYNAMITING SATURDAY WITH PREVIOUS EXPLOSION

Officer of Reliable Laundry Thinks Cause May Be Its Use by Firm Whose Plant Was Bombed.

Police are investigating the dynamiting Saturday night of the Reliable Laundry, 5422 Union boulevard, on a theory of the management that it was because the Bachelor Laundry has its work done there. The Bachelor Laundry, 4875 Easton avenue, was blown up with dynamite and temporarily put out of business the night of May 19 and has been having its work done at the Reliable Laundry since then.

L. Court, assistant manager of the Reliable Laundry, today denied a report that his laundry had cut rates or had engaged in the dyeing and cleaning business. He said it was not an open shop, asserting the laundry workers were not organized in St. Louis as a recognized unit by the employers.

"There has been no labor trouble or dissatisfaction by employees with their wages," said Court, "nor have we cut rates at any time. We started business with a fixed rate about a year ago and have adhered to our original prices. The Bachelor Laundry has been doing its work at our plant since the explosion at its place, which might account for the dynamiting of our plant."

The bomb exploded in a rear room of the Reliable plant, blowing out two front windows and wrecking one of six washing machines, causing several hundred dollars' damage.

SHOT FIRED, LIQUOR FOUND

Following a report that a shot had been fired at 2212 South Fourth street last night, police went there and found a bullet hole in the rear door which was open. Failing to discover anyone at the house, they searched the place and reported finding two gallons of whiskey and 40 bottles of beer.

A woman living at the address arrived later but denied any knowledge of the shooting and said the whiskey and beer probably belonged to a roomer.

1800 ILLINOIS U. GRADUATES GET POCKET-SIZED DIPLOMAS

President Chase Tells Class Educated Men and Women "Must Right a Sick World."

By the Associated Press.
URBANA, Ill., June 12.—Dr. Harry Woodburn Chase today called on educated men and women "to right a sick world," and bestowed pocket-sized diplomas on more than 1800 University of Illinois graduates at commencement exercises. The class was only slightly smaller than last year's, which was the largest in the university's history. Almost 1800 of this year's 1800 were four-year students and more than 300 won advanced degrees.

"Keep your heads," they were advised by President Chase. "Individual effort, energy and intelligence must be exerted if we are to find a way out of the present world situation. This country is not scheduled for ruin."

"In the structure of its life, there will be a place for intelligence and competence. Educated men and women must lead the way. All must co-operate for the common good. We cannot afford to be selfish in our own interests in these times."

6-HOUR DAY ADOPTED AT SHELL CO. REFINERY

Action Will Keep 200 Men on Job at Roxana, Ill. — No
Cut in Hourly Scale.

Operating and maintenance employees of the Shell Petroleum Corporation's refinery at Roxana, Ill., this week will go on six-hour shifts, instead of eight, in order to keep 300 surplus workers on the payroll.

The action was taken to spread 600 jobs among 800 regular employees who work 5 1/2 days a week.
E. H. Schippers, plant manager, explained. The workers have received no reduction in the hourly wage scales, which Schippers described as being in line with general wages paid in the Alton district. Several hundred office employees and other workers will continue working eight hours daily.

Last week about 400 employees were added to the payroll of the Owens-Illinois Glass Co. plant at Alton through inauguration of the six-hour shift. The plant, which operates 24 hours a day, now has its normal quota of employees, about 2000, working in four shifts. This system has been adopted in the 14 plants of the Owens-Illinois Glass Co. to bring the number of employees from 6000 to 4000 without increasing the payroll.

TUFTS COLLEGE PRESENTS DEGREE TO MRS. HOOVER

President's Wife Made Master of Arts; One of Nine Receiving Honorary Awards.

By the Associated Press.

WEDFORD, Mass., June 13.—
Mrs. Herbert Hoover today received an honorary degree of master of arts from President John A. Cousins of Tufts College. A gathering of 5000 attended the commencement exercises, held in a huge tent which had been erected as a protection from occasional showers which broke over the campus. The wife of the President was one of nine persons to receive honorary degrees.

In presenting the degree to Mrs.
Hoover, President Cousins said:
"Nothing counts for more in a world of men than human personality; the art of living is the greatest of arts, the sum of all. Light and shade, essence of design, beauty and harmony, which is music;
unity, the heart of composition;
dignity, the soul of architecture;
gentleness and strength, sympathy and understanding, intelligence and high purpose, steadfastness and reverence, all these are the means and materials in the hands of an artist for the molding of personality. She who honors us with her presence today, setting an example for the nation, makes of her life a work of art. Lou Henry Hoover, wife of the President of the United States, Master of Arts."

CHARGES HUSBAND STRUCK HER

Mrs. Otto G. Koenig Awarded Separate Maintenance Decree.

Mrs. Katharine M. Koenig was awarded a decree of separate maintenance today from Otto G. Koenig, head of the Koenig Floral Co., 4654
West Florissant avenue, Circuit Judge Ryan allowed her $50 a month and $200 attorney fees.

Mrs. Koenig alleged her husband was cold and indifferent and, on one occasion, struck her. In addition, she testified, he humiliated her by not giving her a large enough allowance, and, at times, leaving her allowance on the garage window sill. She asserted Koenig's income was $500 a month.

STRIKING CHAUFFEUR FINED $50

Former General Materials Co. Employee Pleads Guilty.

James Boyd, striking chauffeur of the General Materials Co., was fined $50 in Police Court today when he pleaded guilty of disturbing the peace.

Boyd admitted he was one of a group of strikers who threw stones at two trucks being operated by strike-breakers at La Salle and Thirty-ninth streets last Monday.
Boyd, 20 years old, said he lived at 4047 Shenandoah avenue.

"The Man of Galilee"

The Incomparable Painting by

CARL THOMTAY

Now Exhibited on Our
Music Hall Balcony
Sixth Floor

This famous masterpiece by Carl Thomtay, admittedly first as a painter of Biblical subjects, is being exhibited, beginning today, for a limited time on the Balcony of our Music Hall, Sixth Floor. Art lovers will by all means see it, for it holds an interest for every child, every parent. Art critics say it exhibits the highest type of assured technique of the Danish school . . . and certainly its execution is so lifelike, so human, that it is not just "oil on canvas," but something pulsating with life, with a significant message.

PROSECUTOR ASSAILS MEANS' 'TISSUE OF LIES'

In Closing Argument in Swindle Trial, He Calls Defendant 'Slippery Racketeer.'

By the Associated Press. WASHINGTON, June 13.—The veracity of Gaston B. Means was challenged today by United States Attorney Leo A. Rover as the prosecution opened jury arguments in the trial of the ex-convict on charges of swindling Mrs. Evelyn Walsh McLean out of $104,000. Mother-love, Rover said, impelled Mrs. McLean to hope she could aid in returning the kidnapped Lindbergh baby while Means "was willing to capitalize on human misery and woe." She is alleged to have given Means the money to recover the child.

"Means' diabolical plan," Rover charged, "was a tissue of lies from beginning to end. When Gaston Means told the truth, he lied to get out of it."

Mrs. McLean, Rover said, may have been unwise, but she had enough business judgment to insist at all times that the $100,000 ransom money turned over to Means was not to be parted with by him until the child "had been returned and properly identified."

As Rover termed Means a "slippery, slimy racketeer," the defendant sat in his chair chewing cough drops and watching the Government attorney.

SUPREME COURT UPHOLDS NEGRO HOSPITAL PROJECT

Approves Decision Refusing Injunction Against Erection of New Building.

Special to the Post-Dispatch. JEFFERSON CITY, June 13.—The Missouri Supreme Court today upheld the Circuit Court of St. Louis in its refusal to issue an injunction restraining city officials from constructing a $1,200,000 hospital for Negroes at Whittier street and Kennerly avenue.

The injunction was sought by Harry J. Meyerling, 3811A Ashland avenue, president of the Chouteau-Lindell Improvement Association, who contended the 1923 bond issue authorized new extensions and equipment for hospitals, but not construction of new buildings. The Supreme Court held, however, that "extensions and equipment" was to be interpreted as authorizing new buildings.

The city has proceeded with plans for the hospital and appropriated $552,000 last March for construction of the first unit.

Herman Guelker, 21, Who Earns $2 a Day, Supports Widowed Mother, He Says.

After sentence was passed, Guelker told reporters he earned $2 a day and supported his widowed mother. He lived at 2629 Sublette avenue.

AIRPLANE TAKES INJURED FROM SHIP TO HOSPITAL

Two Men Scalded When Steam Pipe Bursts on Tanker Off Cape May.

By the Associated Press. PHILADELPHIA, June 13.—Radio and airplanes were employed yesterday to save the lives of two sailors seriously scalded when a steam pipe burst on the Tidewater Oil Co.'s tanker Samuel Q. Brown of New York, about 33 miles off Cape May, N. J.

The tanker radioed the Cape May Coast Guard base for assistance and a seaplane piloted by Lieutenant-Commander C. G. von Paulsen was sent to bring the victims. Von Paulsen landed on the choppy water near the tanker and the two men, on stretchers, were transferred to the plane by a small boat.

When the plane landed at the Coast Guard base, physicians found the sailors were burned so badly that their facilities were inadequate to attend them. Still in the airplane, they were flown to the Philadelphia navy yard and taken to St. Agnes Hospital here.

Coast guard officials said the men arrived at the hospital just three hours after they received the tanker's call for help. The men are Leonard G. Ambros, Bayonne, N. J., first assistant engineer, and Hans Shwaiger, 27, of New York.

KILLED BY SUBWAY TRAIN

NEW YORK, June 13.—Dillingham, 32 years old, son of an old Virginia family, was killed when he jumped or fell in front of a subway train as it entered the Fifty-first street station of the Lexington avenue line yesterday.

Dillingham was the son of Col.

ALBERT R. DILLINGHAM, U. S. A., RETIRED, AND GRANDSON OF THE LATE ADMIRAL ALBERT CALDWELL DILLINGHAM, U. S. N.

Col. Dillingham, who lived with his son and the latter's wife, the former Mary Hyatt of High Point, N. C., said his son had no reason to end his life. Detectives quoted Mrs. Mary McManus, a witness, as saying she saw Dillingham jump in front of the train.

W. C. REDFIELD DIES, IN WILSON'S CABINET

Former Secretary of Commerce Is Found Dead in Bed by Wife.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, June 13.—William C. Redfield, Secretary of Commerce during the Wilson administration, died at his Brooklyn home today.

He was 73 years old.

Mrs. Elsie Redfield, whom the former Cabinet man married in 1885, found her husband dead when she went to his room to awaken him this morning.

The Redfields had two children, Humphrey Redfield and Mrs. Charles K. Drury.

When Mr. Redfield entered Congress in 1911 the tariff was a dominant issue and he came to be regarded as one of the experts on the subject in the House. He had been for many years a manufacturer of steel products.

He held a high protective tariff to be unneeded, since, he said, the American worker's skill more than compensated for the cheaper wages of other countries.

TWO ARE KILLED, ANOTHER DIES OF AUTO INJURIES

Aloys H. Sieffert, 71, East
St. Louis, Melba Jean
Byrd, 4, and Charles
Hahn Jr., 30 Victims.

Three deaths from motor vehicle accidents occurred yesterday. The dead:

Aloys H. Sieffert, 71 years old, a druggist, 1732 1/2 Missouri avenue, East St. Louis.

Melba Jean Byrd, 4, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ira Byrd, 916A
Chambers street.

Charles Hahn Jr., 30, a baker,
1113 Delphine avenue, Overland Sieffert, driving at Elliott and Cass avenues at 6 p. m., was thrown to the pavement in a collision with another automobile. He died two hours later at city hospital of a fractured skull. The other driver, who apparently was uninjured, abandoned his machine.
Police later were informed by a man describing himself as E. A.
Bowers, 2976 Evans avenue, that the car belongs to his son, Eugene, who telephoned that he had been in an accident.

Eugene Bowers, a laborer, surrendered to police at Dayton Street District Station and admitted that he was the driver sought. He explained that he became excited following the collision, and went to the home of friends for the night.
He was placed under bond pending an inquest.

Sieffert formerly operated a store at Twenty-sixth street and Ridge avenue, in East St. Louis. He sold out several years ago and went to Florida, where he was reported to have lost heavily in real estate investments. He returned to East St.
Louis and had been employed as a pharmacist. He was a widower.

Melba Jean Byrd was killed at 6:45 p. m. when she ran into the street in front of her home and was struck by a truck driven by a neighbor, Daniel Black, a huckster, of 215 Chambers street.

Black told police that the child, who had been playing with other children on the sidewalk, dashed in front of his truck from behind a parked automobile. He asserted, he said, but could not avoid striking her. A wheel of the machine passed over her head.

When it was discovered that Black had no chauffeur's license, no city license, and but one State license tag, he was booked on several charges and ordered held for the coroner.

Hahn died at city hospital yesterday morning of fractures of the skull and spine suffered last Tuesday afternoon when he was thrown from his automobile, which collided with a taxicab at Twelfth street and Shenandoah avenue. The taxi was driven by Richard Kelly, 6911 Bruno avenue.

Three Hurt When Rented Auto
Hits Pole and Parked Car.

Three persons were injured when a rented automobile driven by Leo McQuade, 19, 4228 Prairie avenue, hit a telephone pole and a parked automobile at Clayton avenue and Grand View place early yesterday.
McQuade suffered a fractured skull.
Miss Nellie Ryan, 18, 2412 South
Spring avenue, a shoe factory worker, who was thrown against the pole, suffered a fractured skull.
Arthur Berne, 19, 2720 St. Louis avenue, was cut and bruised.

Others injured in automobile accidents yesterday were: Daniel A.
Ottenheimer, 5207 Kensington avenue, bruises; Henry Polk, 3641
Washington boulevard, fractured nose; Miss Ruby Olsen and Miss Daisy Van Dyke, both of 4224 Lindell boulevard, lacerations; Alan Turnbull Jr., 4, fractured ribs, both of 2812 Benton street; Mrs. Ruth Beckley, same address, lacerations.

Salesman Injured in Auto Upset
Dies in Belleville Hospital.

George Loeffler, 34, a salesman, of O'Fallon, Ill., died last night at St. Elizabeth's Hospital in Belleville, after amputation of his left arm, injured in an automobile accident Saturday. Physicians said death resulted from an excessive loss of blood.

Loeffler was pinned beneath his automobile when it overturned, on French Village-Birkner Station road, after striking a deep rut.

ARRAIGNED FOR KILLINGS

Detroit Man Accused of Shooting
Three Last Fall.
DETROIT, June 13.—Harry Fleisher, who surrendered to police last week after being sought for months in connection with the Lindbergh baby kidnapping, stood today when he was arraigned in Recorder's Court on a murder warrant outstanding for nearly a year. A plea of not guilty was entered and Fleisher was sent back to jail.

The murder warrant grew out of the Collinswood apartment murder here last September in which three men were slain. Harry Keywell, Irving Millberg and Raymond Ber-stein now are serving life terms for the killing. Fleisher was named by Solly Levine as eye-witness to the shooting, as the fourth mur-derer.

Electrocuted at Work.

Joseph Blumstein, 42 years old, 323 Rough avenue, East St. Louis, was electrocuted at his work at the Heister Bros. Packing Co., 1214
North Second street, East St. Louis, Saturday. Standing with one hand on a steel rod, he reached for an electric light with an iron hook.
In doing so, he broke the globe and touched the exposed wire.

ALLEGEDLY INSANE WOMAN GIVES AWAY $3,000,000

Now Her Daughter Plans Court Action at Chicago to Regain Property.

By the Associated Press.
CHICAGO, June 13.—Hunt for $3,000,000 given away by an allegedly insane woman starts this week in Probate Court. The incident was disclosed by attorneys for Mrs. Florence Sears, who is seeking to recover assets of the estate of her elderly mother, Mrs. Lydia Norman, now in an asylum.

Mrs. Norman gave 10,000 acres of land in Georgia worth $500,000 to a casual acquaintance, Attorney Robert S. Lee said; she made a Chicago woman a present of a $150,000 library and gave another woman jewelry valu at $200,000.
Civil suits will be started against all persons who received large gifts from Mrs. Norman.

BLIND

CARDS IDLE; REESE HURT, WILL BE OUT FOR 10 DAYS

By J. Roy Stockton.

NEW YORK, June 13.—The Cardinals were idle again today, when another scheduled game with Brooklyn was washed out. It was announced that today's game will be played as a double-header July 26.

Bad luck gave the World Champions another kick last night, when Manager Street was informed that Jimmy Reese, the brilliant young utility infielder from St. Paul, had been so badly injured in his collision with Al Lopez of the Dodgers in Saturday's game that he would be forced to stay out of the Redbird lineup for a week or 10 days. As a result of the injury Frankie Frisch will have to return to his old position at second base and Leo Cunningham, young infielder from Danville, will have to play third base for the Cardinals until Reese or Sparky Adams can return to duty. Adams has been working out at Philadelphia, where he said he would remain until he felt that he was able to perform in the Redbird infield. The fact that no word has been heard from him leads Manager Street to believe that he is several days short of being ready for duty.

Reese visited a physician yesterday and X-ray photographs of his shoulder disclosed that no fracture had been suffered, but the physician said that apparently a ligament in Reese's left shoulder had been strained, and suggested that he would have to rest for a week or 10 days.

For some time it has been evident that the Cardinals needed more infield protection. Cunningham, described by the usually astute Branch Rickey as a "$100,000 ball player," has not shown big league qualifications, and though he was on the roster, Street was forced to use Harvey Hendrick at third base when Adams and Frisch both were incapacitated.

The opinion in Cardinal camp has been that Cunningham was being retained merely until a spot was found for him on one of the minor league clubs. But now the world champions will have to carry on with this graduate from Danville as their third baseman.

Manager Street is not complaining, merely stating that he hopes to see Adams in uniform soon, but the fact remains an obvious one that the club needs help.

Since last October it has been a case of everything going out and nothing coming in. Since the world series Grimes, Hafer, Flowers, High, Roettger, Hack Wilson, Hendrick, Kaufmann, Frey, Rhee and Delker have been sent away by the Cardinals, whereas the only men on the roster who were not with the club in 1931 are Dues, Dean, Reese, Tex Carleton and B. Sherdel.

Unless a dependable utility infielder is obtained, the Cardinals cannot hope to carry on and stay in a contending position in case of accidents, and for that reason followers of the Redbirds are keeping a weather eye open for announcements. Now is the time for Sam Breadon and Branch Rickey to come to the aid of their ball club.

Game Rained Out. Rain prevented the playing of yesterday's game, but that gave the Cardinals only a temporary respite, as the Brooklyn management scheduled a double-header for tomorrow.

PLAY CONTINUES IN TRI-STATE TENNIS

CINCINNATI, June 13.—Rain caused postponement of all but six matches in the Tri-State tennis tournament yesterday.

In the only match involving out-of-towners, Paul Imas, Dayton, O., defeated William Wertz, Portsmouth, O., 6-2, 6-4, 6-1, in the junior singles.

Play will continue today in the men's singles, women's singles and junior singles. All the seeded players, except George Lott, National Clay Court singles champion, will be in action.

Mrs. Violet Furlong of the O'Fallon Park Tennis Club is competing in the women's singles in the Tri-State event.

Since last October it has been a case of everything going out and nothing coming in. Since the world series Grimes, Hefey, Flowers, Hugh, Rottger, Hack Wilson, Bender, Kaufmann, Frey, Ribem and Walker have been sent away by the Cardinals, whereas the only ones on the roster who were not with the club in 1931 are Dixie Dean, Reese, Tex Carleton and Bill Bower.

Game Rained Out.

Rain prevented the playing of yesterday's game, but that gave the Cardinals only a temporary reprieve, as the Brooklyn management scheduled a double-header for tomorrow.

Browns Only Four Games Out of Second Place After Defeating Senators Twice

By James M. Gould.

The Washington Senators are in second place and they may be considered to have a chance for the American League pennant, but they owe neither their present high standing nor their flag chance to their ability to beat the Browns. The teams have met seven times this season and six times Bill Killefer's team has been victorious, the last two victories having been earned before 10,000 enthusiastic fans in yesterday's doubleheader.

ECONOMIC MADE FAVORITE FOR AMERICAN DERBY

Saturday's climax of the Washington Park racing season. The father of those wide open affairs.

The King, victorious in the Kentucky Derby and the Preakness, was about to be shipped from New York to make a try for the rich prize, but bowed a tendon in training, and probably will not race again this season.

With Bushong King out, the field of horses will be larger and a number as 20 thoroughbreds may make up for the mile and a quarter race for fame and gold. Economies from the J. H. Leachman stable tend to the Kentucky Derby, and the winner of the Ohio Derby already has been made the favorite, but the backing will be read around by Saturday.

The prospective field, out of a original list of 135, has been shaped as follows: W. R. Coe's Oceanic, W. William Woodward's Fairplay, Mrs. J. H. Whitney's Stephenie, Ed. Schmitt, Mad Pursuit from the stable of Walter J. Salmon; W. M. Mofford's Boswain, and others. Owners include J. H. Whitney's Top Gun, H. H. Adcox, Top Gun.

DAVILA RESIGNS
FROM SOCIALIST
JUNTA IN CHILEFormer Envoy to U. S.
Said to Have Been Forced Out Because of Moderation.HIS POLICY ASSAILED
BY RADICAL PAPERAssociate Is Arrested After Discovery of Plot to Restore Former President
Ibanez.By the Associated Press.
SANTIAGO, Chile, June 13.—Carlos G. Davila resigned from the Socialist Government of Chile yesterday because of discord within the revolutionary junta.

Col. Marmaduke Grove, who helped him overthrow President Juan Esteban Montero on June 4, is believed by many to have forced Davila out because his policies toward foreign interests, particularly the American-controlled Cosach combine, were considered too moderate.

Unofficial reports that an army group was attempting to bring former President Carlos Ibanez from exile to form a new junta with Davila's aid were circulated, but Grove remained in control of the situation.

Davila, who was Ambassador to Washington until his return to Chile last year, refused to comment, but a member of his family told the Associated Press that he resigned on account of a disagreement with others in the junta.

Radical to Succeed Him.
Reports from presidential palace said the junta had decided on Davila's successor, who would be a man of more radical views. An official statement said the army continued loyal.

Extremist sentiment against Davila's continuance in the junta arose as a result of attacks against him by the Left newspaper, Opinion, which has led efforts of certain elements in Northern Chile to force dissolution of the $375,000,000 Cosach organization. Cosach is controlled by capitalists of the United States.

Davila's departure from the junta was looked upon in some quarters as unfavorable to foreign interests. He had expressed a desire for moderation in the new Government's plan for state operation of industry, while others, including Grove, have expressed a belief that great sacrifices by capitalists were necessary to socialize the country.

Report of Plot.
Capt. Alejandro Lazo, an associate of Davila and of former President Ibanez, was arrested by the Government in what was understood to be the discovery of a plot to restore Ibanez to power.

Reports were current that followers of Ibanez, who fled to Argentina last July after a popular uprising against him, were seeking to reorganize the Junta electing Grove, who led the march on the presidential palace a week ago. There is a belief that the Government's discussion of the supposed plot may have led Davila to withdraw from the junta.

The junta denied reports current that the Navy had revolted. Telegrams from Antofagasta and Iquique, quoting Davila as telling the foreign press that the giant Cosach organization would not be dissolved, were published in "Opinion."

The Finance Ministry issued a statement last week in which it said the Government would not take any steps to confiscate the Cosach properties until a committee of experts had made a thorough study of the nitrate problem and the matter had been submitted to the new Congress, which is expected to be convened in November. Later, the Government issued a retraction of this statement.

Independent observers said they believed that Davila's statements had been misconstrued, since he had merely said a detailed study would be given the Cosach organization, with an assurance of fairness to foreign interests.

Cultural Program.
Declaring it to be the chief duty of the Socialist state to advance public culture, the junta has appointed a commission to carry out the program for the republic.

The commission was told to arrange for the founding and financing of a state theater, state printing and editorial establishment, state radio, arts classes in all public schools, factories connected with a school of applied arts and an organization for the advancement of folklore.

A national Socialist economic council, with workers among its members, already had been created to advise the Government on economic policies.

The founding of the Socialist regime was celebrated today with programs at the Municipal Theater and Coliseum. A parade in the afternoon closed the capital's observance of the new Government's first week.

ENGLAND AND FRANCE GOING

Viewpoint Looking Toward Solution of International Problems.

By the Associated Press.

GENEVA, June 13.—Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald of Great Britain and Premier Edouard Herriot of France arrived in Geneva tonight for a brief visit which may have important effects on the future of the disarmament conference here. There have been reports in Geneva the past week that the British were preparing a new disarmament idea in the hope of reviving the conference and that the British and other European Governments had decided to suspend the arms conference until the reparations meeting at Lausanne is over.

The Conference Bureau will meet tomorrow and the situation is expected to be cleared then. The American delegation is sticking to its contention that the disarmament parley should stay on the job.

MacDonald and Herriot are on their way to the Lausanne meeting, which opens Thursday. Foreign Minister Dino Grandi of Italy, also en route to Lausanne, arrived in Geneva today.

He last time MacDonald and Herriot appeared in Geneva together was in 1924, when they launched the Geneva protocol.

The Geneva protocol called upon all signatories to apply, in the event of aggression, all existing sanctions against the aggressor, and laid the groundwork for armament reduction.

It was followed by a change in Government in Great Britain and the new administration rejected it.

WITH HOOVER AT WHITE HOUSEPresident Keeping in Touch With Convention Developments by Telephone and Telegraph.

WASHINGTON, June 13.—Through a squad of his advisers in Chicago, President Hoover is keeping in touch with national convention developments in Chicago.

The chief executive remained within reach of a telephone yesterday, except for attending Quaker services with Mrs. Hoover during the morning.

By means of both long-distance conversations and the telegraph he listened to the views of his rapidly increasing corps of Cabinet officers and personal secretaries assembled in Chicago, and sent back his own opinions.

During the day the President talked in his study with two of those prominently mentioned for the vice presidential candidacy should Vice President Curtis not be given the place.

Both Charles G. Dawes and Secretary of War Hurley asserted upon leaving the White House, however, that politics had not been discussed. Dawes, with Mrs. Dawes and Assistant Secretary of the Treasury Douglas and Mrs. Douglas, had lunch with President and Mrs. Hoover, with Secretary Hurley joining the three men later in the Lincoln study.

Earlier, the chief executive had a breakfast conference with Senator Watson of Indiana, the Republican leader, at which both politics and economy matters were discussed.

MEXICO CITY, June 13.—A dispatch from Colima, Mexico, today said the semi-active Colima volcano burst into eruption yesterday, throwing a sheet of flame and towers of smoke high into the air. Loud subterranean rumblings accompanied the eruption, and nearby residents hastily prepared to depart from the vicinity, fearing a lava flow. The eruption was preceded by two sharp earth shocks.

The volcano is situated in the State of Jalisco, about 50 miles northeast of the city of Colima. The nearest populated area is Ciudad Guzman, a considerable city.

Dispatches from the coast said quantities of dead fish were washed up on the beaches, indicating some disturbance under the sea. Several light earth shocks were felt in Mexico City yesterday afternoon.

DEWEY CALLS CONFERENCE
OF POLITICAL INDEPENDENTSCleveland Meeting July 9 and 10
May Open Way for Forming of Third Party.By the Associated Press.
NEW YORK, June 13.—Dr. John Dewey, liberal philosopher, who supported Alfred E. Smith for the presidency in 1928, issued a call yesterday for a national meeting at Cleveland on July 9 and 10 to crystallize independent sentiment and perhaps eventually to form a third party.

The major political parties, he said, have outlived their usefulness. Invitations have gone out through the League for Independent Political Action, of which Dr. Dewey is chairman. The conference will consider the indorsement of candidates of such independent groups as the Minnesota Farmer-Labor party, the Socialist party, the Independent Labor party of West Virginia and others.

Among those expected to address the conference are Dr. Dewey, William Mahoney, Mayor of St. Paul; Representative Paul J. Kvale, Minnesota Farmer-Labor; Oswald Garrison Villard and Devere Allen of "The Nation"; Paul H. Douglas, Chicago, economist; Howard Y. Williams and B. C. Viadec.

BERLIN, June 13.—An emergency decree to be issued by the Cabinet tomorrow will impose a graduated tax, beginning with a minimum of 1 1/2 per cent, on all employed persons. It will eliminate all exemptions from the turnover tax and will reduce the dole for the unemployed and war veterans.

Another decree will cancel the order dissolving Adolf Hitler's National Socialist "storm troops" as a menace to the State. Their abolition was one of the last acts of former Chancellor Brüning, before President von Hindenburg replaced him with Franz von Papen.

Tailors are working overtime to turn out new uniforms in anticipation of the resurrection of Hitler's private army.

CHAMBERLAIN OPPOSES RETURN

LONDON, June 13.—Neville Chamberlain, Chancellor of the Exchequer, told Parliament today it would not be desirable for Great Britain to return to the gold standard "as long as existing conditions continue."

The country went off the gold standard last Sept. 20 when Philip Snowden was Chancellor. The pound sterling dropped in value immediately and is now worth $2.48.

Last week the League of Nations Gold Committee recommended return to the gold standard as quickly as possible by those Governments which have abandoned it.

GOVERNMENT COST

1900 IN MISSOURIAssociated Industries Cites Need of Reorganization and Creation of Effective Budget System.

An analysis of the steadily mounting expenditures of the State government of Missouri, for the 30 years ending with 1930, which shows an average increase of more than 400 per cent in bureau and departmental costs, is offered by the Associated Industries of Missouri as an illustration of the need for governmental reorganization and creation of an effective budget system.

The investigation covered 82 of the State institutions, departments, boards, commissions and bureaus, and the courts. For the county and 48 of the agencies which were in existence in 1901, the costs of operation increased from $4,922,811 in the biennial period of 1901-1902, to $26,594,691 in the biennial period of 1929-1930.

For 34 State agencies created since 1901, operating costs were $7,100,431 in the biennial period of 1929-1930. The total operating costs of the 82 agencies and the courts, for the biennial period of 1929-1930, were $33,397,122, as compared to $4,922,811 for those in existence during the biennial period of 1901-1902.

The analysis did not include road construction and maintenance expenditures, State public school funds, payments of soldier bonus and blind pensions, bond retirement and interest, State park expenditures, and other miscellaneous expenditures, totaling $90,549,171 for the biennial period of 1929-1930.

Total expenditures of the State government, for all purposes, were $123,846,292 in the biennial period of 1929-1930.

THE RIVIERA GIRL AT MUNY OPERA TONIGHT

More Than 60,000 Persons Saw Last Week's Performances of "The New Moon."

The opening week of the fourteenth season of Municipal Opera attracted more than 60,000 persons to see "The New Moon," the seventh performance of which was concluded last night.

In 1931, "Three Little Girls," the opening attraction, drew 58,665 persons in nine performances.

Officers of the Municipal Theater Association were stated with the results of the first production and believe that unless unfavorable weather is encountered later, the opera this summer will approximate its record attendance.

Emmerich Kalman's musical romance, "The Riviera Girl," opening tonight, marks the return to the Municipal Opera cast of Miss Yvonne d'Arle, prima donna who scored a success at the Municipal Theater seven years ago. Miss d'Arle will have the title role in the Kalman opera. Hugh Cameron, comedian, makes his debut with the opera company in this week's offering. Others who have principal roles are Guy Robertson, Leonard Ceeley, Harry K. Morton, Barbara Newberry, George Houston, Carl Randall, Virginia Watson and Hope Emerson.

This will be the first presentation of "The Riviera Girl" at the Municipal Theater. The only previous showing of the operetta in St. Louis was at the American Theater in 1918.

Tonight's performance will show the new scheme of scenic design made for the Forest Park stage by Watson Barratt, art director for the Municipal Theater Association.

TO PRESENT MADDUX CASE TO GRAND JURY

Prosecutor Will Offer Evidence Despite Discharge of Victim's Husband at Hearing.

Although Walter Maddux, Webster Groves laborer, was discharged by Justice of the Peace Lewis at Clayton, in recent preliminary hearing in the murder of his wife, Reba, by Clara, a housemaid who made her home with the Madduxs, Clara, who has confessed the murder four or five times, has charged in her most recent story that Maddux committed the crime.

Maddux was found dead in a wooded section in the western part of Kirkwood, Oct. 31, last. Clara was arrested the following day, after an inquest. On questioning she admitted purchasing the razor with which Mrs. Maddux's throat was cut and the other which was found near the body.

She then asserted that Mrs. Maddux took the ether and committed suicide, changing her story later to allege a mysterious woman in a green sedan had led Mrs. Maddux into the woods and killed her. When police declined to believe that story, Clara said she cut Mrs. Maddux's throat at Mrs. Maddux's request.

After she had signed that confession, she was permitted to talk with relatives and after conversing for more than an hour, charged that Maddux had murdered his wife and that she, Clara, had merely assisted the woman prior to the murder.

Clara said she overpowered Mrs. Maddux and gave her the ether before 4 p. m., Oct. 30, and that Maddux drove out to the wooded place more than two hours later, leaving Clara at his son in the automobile, and donning a pair of coveralls, went down a path to the point where Clara had left Mrs. Maddux. He returned later, Clara asserted, saying he had "done the job."

Clara's relatives gave Sheriff Lill a blood-stained pair of coveralls which they said they found hidden near the murder scene, about two weeks after the killing. Chemists who examined the clothing were unable to say whether the blood was that of a human being, and Justice of the Peace Lewis characterized the evidence as "a fair tale."

TOBACCO CUSTOMERS URGED TO PROTEST AGAINST TAX

Drug stores and tobacco shops are distributing leaflets among their customers, opposing the city tobacco tax being considered by the Board of Aldermen. They urge tobacco users to protest to the Aldermen. They are signed by the Retail Tobacco Dealers' Association, the Retail Druggists' Association and the tobacco distributors' group.

The proposed tax is 20 per cent on the retail price of all forms of tobacco, to help raise funds for public relief. The Kansas City tobacco tax, adopted in 1927 and later repealed, is described in the leaflets as a failure. A Kansas city newspaper is quoted as saying consumers there forced dealers to "boycott" tobacco by refusing to accept articles bearing the city tax stamp. Tobacco already is heavily taxed, the publication continues, and the new imposition would hurt many dealers by causing thousands of citizens to obtain supplies outside the city.

out by the Associated Industries that these large expenditures were under a makeshift budget system that makes no provision for effective control or revision of appropriations, once authorized.

The so-called budget system now in force provides for investigation by the State Tax Commission of the biennial appropriation requests of each of the State agencies, preparing estimates of the probable State revenues for the biennial period, and recommendations to the commission to the Governor and Legislature of appropriations that will be within the estimate of revenues.

The recommendations of the commission are not binding upon the Legislature, which makes appropriations as it sees fit. It usually passes general revenue appropriation bills which exceed the estimated revenues by several million dollars, then sends the bills along to the Governor to make them fit the income, if he can.

No Power to Reduce Item. The Governor may veto an item, but he has no power to reduce an item, or to change conditions during a biennium. No constitutional power exists for such revision. Various Governors have adopted a practice of holding up parts of appropriations, by agreement with the department, until money is available, but there is no legal authority for this.

CHAPTER TWELVE.

NEWMAN'S Ten Cent Store consisted of two floors, the basement with the tinware, dishes and toys, and the street floor with its conglomeration of everything else in the world from ribbons and stockings to rhinestone necklaces. The name wasn't exactly truthful, because many of the articles that were sold cost more than 10 cents. Twenty-five cents, however, was the top price.

Narrow aisles, low ceilings, a mass of orderly counters, the stifling feeling that there wasn't enough air in the place. The steps from the main floor to the basement held a surge of people all day long. The high, shrill buzz of conversation punctuated by the tinkling bells on the cash registers. Noise, clatter, the busy clerks un-mindful of it.

Julie was in the basement at the tinware counter, thankful to be there, grateful to Mabel, who was across the aisle selling glassware. A moment of fear when Mabel had taken her up the narrow steps that led to the office on the balcony, and she had talked to the manager. Then relief, when after taking her name and address, he had said she could go to work at $13.50 a week, starting that morning, for they were short of help. The tinware. One of the girls downstairs would show her how to wrap the packages, how to manage the cash register, and her stock.

Punching the time clock under the stairs as they went down, Mabel's caution never to forget it.

"They dock you when you are late," she explained as she showed Julie how to work it.

Thirteen dollars and fifty cents a week. It seemed a lot to Julie, now. With that and what she made at the Golden Slipper—for she had decided not to quit there until she had enough money to buy some new clothes—she didn't have to worry. Two weeks of the three months were nearly gone, and her money troubles were diminishing. It wasn't hard to get along if you had to, and knew you had to.

It was still carrying on with her adventure. She didn't have to be afraid that someone she knew would come in here, she told herself. Newman's was out of the way of fashionable shoppers, and besides fashionable shoppers didn't go into 10-cent stores.

FIVE minutes after she had comforted herself with the thought, she looked up and recognized one of the maids from her grandfather's Long Island house. But Gretchen was paying no attention to her. She was pawing through a pile of pie pans, and even when she handed her purchase to Julie, and took the money from her purse to pay for it, and their eyes met for one swift moment, the girl was sure the maid didn't know her.

The fright of the next few minutes when Gretchen lingered at the counter and fingered a few more articles, and then she was gone, and Julie was leaning weakly against the rail. It would appear everything if any one knew where she was, and she had to stop the adventure even before it was started.

How neat Gretchen had looked. How well dressed in her dark frock and smart black hat. The dress was vaguely familiar, as was the hat, and Julie decided they must have been hers. When she was finished with her clothes she gave them to Hilda, who did as she pleased with them. Evidently Hilda had given or sold the black dress and the black turned down hat to Gretchen.

Julie sighed as she waited on another customer for a baking pan. Gretchen was much better dressed than she was now. Pretty, too, she was, in street clothes. Julie had only seen her about the house before in her black silk dress and her white organdy apron and cap. One of the 14 or so maids that kept Brettwood running. And besides the 14 or so maids there were a dozen men servants. Brettwood was a large estate, and servants' quarters at the side consisted of a 20-room house.

Gretchen had given her a scare, though, just as Polly Corbett had, too, on Saturday. Worse to have Polly see her as she was than Gretchen. But Polly had looked right at her, and then away. And in the next moment she was getting into her car and driving on. Polly hadn't recognized her, either, luckily.

They had almost collided when Julie had been hurrying past a shop, and Polly had come from its entrance. Polly, who was her best friend. Polly with whom she had grown up. The same schools together, the same interests until Max Sherwood had challenged her that night on the balcony.

POLLY going the same old way. She another way. A harder way. What would Polly say now if she knew what she was doing? Julie tried to guess but couldn't. Shocked she'd be, of course, for in her heart Polly was conventional and lazy. Twenty, both of them. Rich, both of them.

Still, what would Polly say if she knew? And Silas Brett. Julie was as uncertain of her grandfather as she was of Polly. You couldn't tell how he would take things. This adventure, for example. He might approve and he might not. Although he always let her do as she chose, provided Hilda was with her. He might balk at this. Hadn't he said, more times than she could

SYNOPSIS.

Julie Brett and Max Sherwood said good-by at Portage and Broadway, with the understanding that if she needed him she would call and they would meet there. Julie, heiress to millions, was starting out to earn her own living for three months. She gets a job as a dance hall hostess at the Golden Slipper and moves in to live with one of the other girls, Mabel Ryan. Looking after experience she finds it very difficult to find a position during the day. Mabel offers to take her to Newman's Ten Cent Store, where she works, to try there for a job. On Sunday she meets Max. He asks her to marry him and Julie promises to give him an answer at the end of the three months. Two weeks ago Julie wanted Max to propose, but since Don Farrell, an artist, came into the Golden Slipper and danced with Julie, she can't get him out of her mind.

remember, that he was glad he had made money enough so that she could enjoy herself?

Max, himself, wasn't easy about this new life, although he had inadvertently suggested it. Nothing had happened yet, and nothing would, if she could help it.

Julie Is Tired.

The morning passed quickly. She was tired from standing on her feet. Her back ached from the strain. Now and then Mabel waved to her over the pink and green and white glassware, and Julie smiled bravely in return. Easier walking on the pavements than standing in this hot, stuffy basement.

By late afternoon she was exhausted, and by 6 she could hardly drag herself home with Mabel. "Till do," Mabel asked. "Does it get easier as you go on?"

"Much. The first day is the hardest. I thought I'd die the first day."

When they went into a small lunch counter, she couldn't eat. Too weary. How did Mabel stand it? On her feet all day, dancing at the Golden Slipper until midnight. Night after night. No wonder she had stayed in bed practically all of yesterday.

Two months and two weeks more of this, for she had told Max last night that she was going to stick it out. How long was two months and two weeks? Seventy-six days. One thousand eight hundred and twenty-four hours. This morning she had been so thrilled at the job. So glad to get it.

How had Max known it would be hard this severing of her old life, and this starting of a new? It was hard, and it would have been harder if she hadn't been walking the streets for nearly two weeks for work. If she hadn't danced every night at the Golden Slipper.

"Y OUD better not try to go down to Abe's tonight," Mabel cautioned. "You're too tired."

"I might lose my job there—"

"No, I'd better go." After a cup of coffee she did feel more like herself, although not all the fatigue had gone.

"Take my advice and stay home."

"I'd rather go." She couldn't tell Mabel that the reason she wanted to was the chance that Don Farrell might come again, and that if he did, she wanted to be there. No confessing that.

Mabel saw through her ruse. "You don't have to tell me, Julie, that you want to see that guy again. I see it in your eyes."

"Well—"

"Don't make a fool out of yourself. He won't come."

But she went to the Golden Slipper, struggled through the dances as best she could, anxious eyes on the door where Abe's patrons came in.

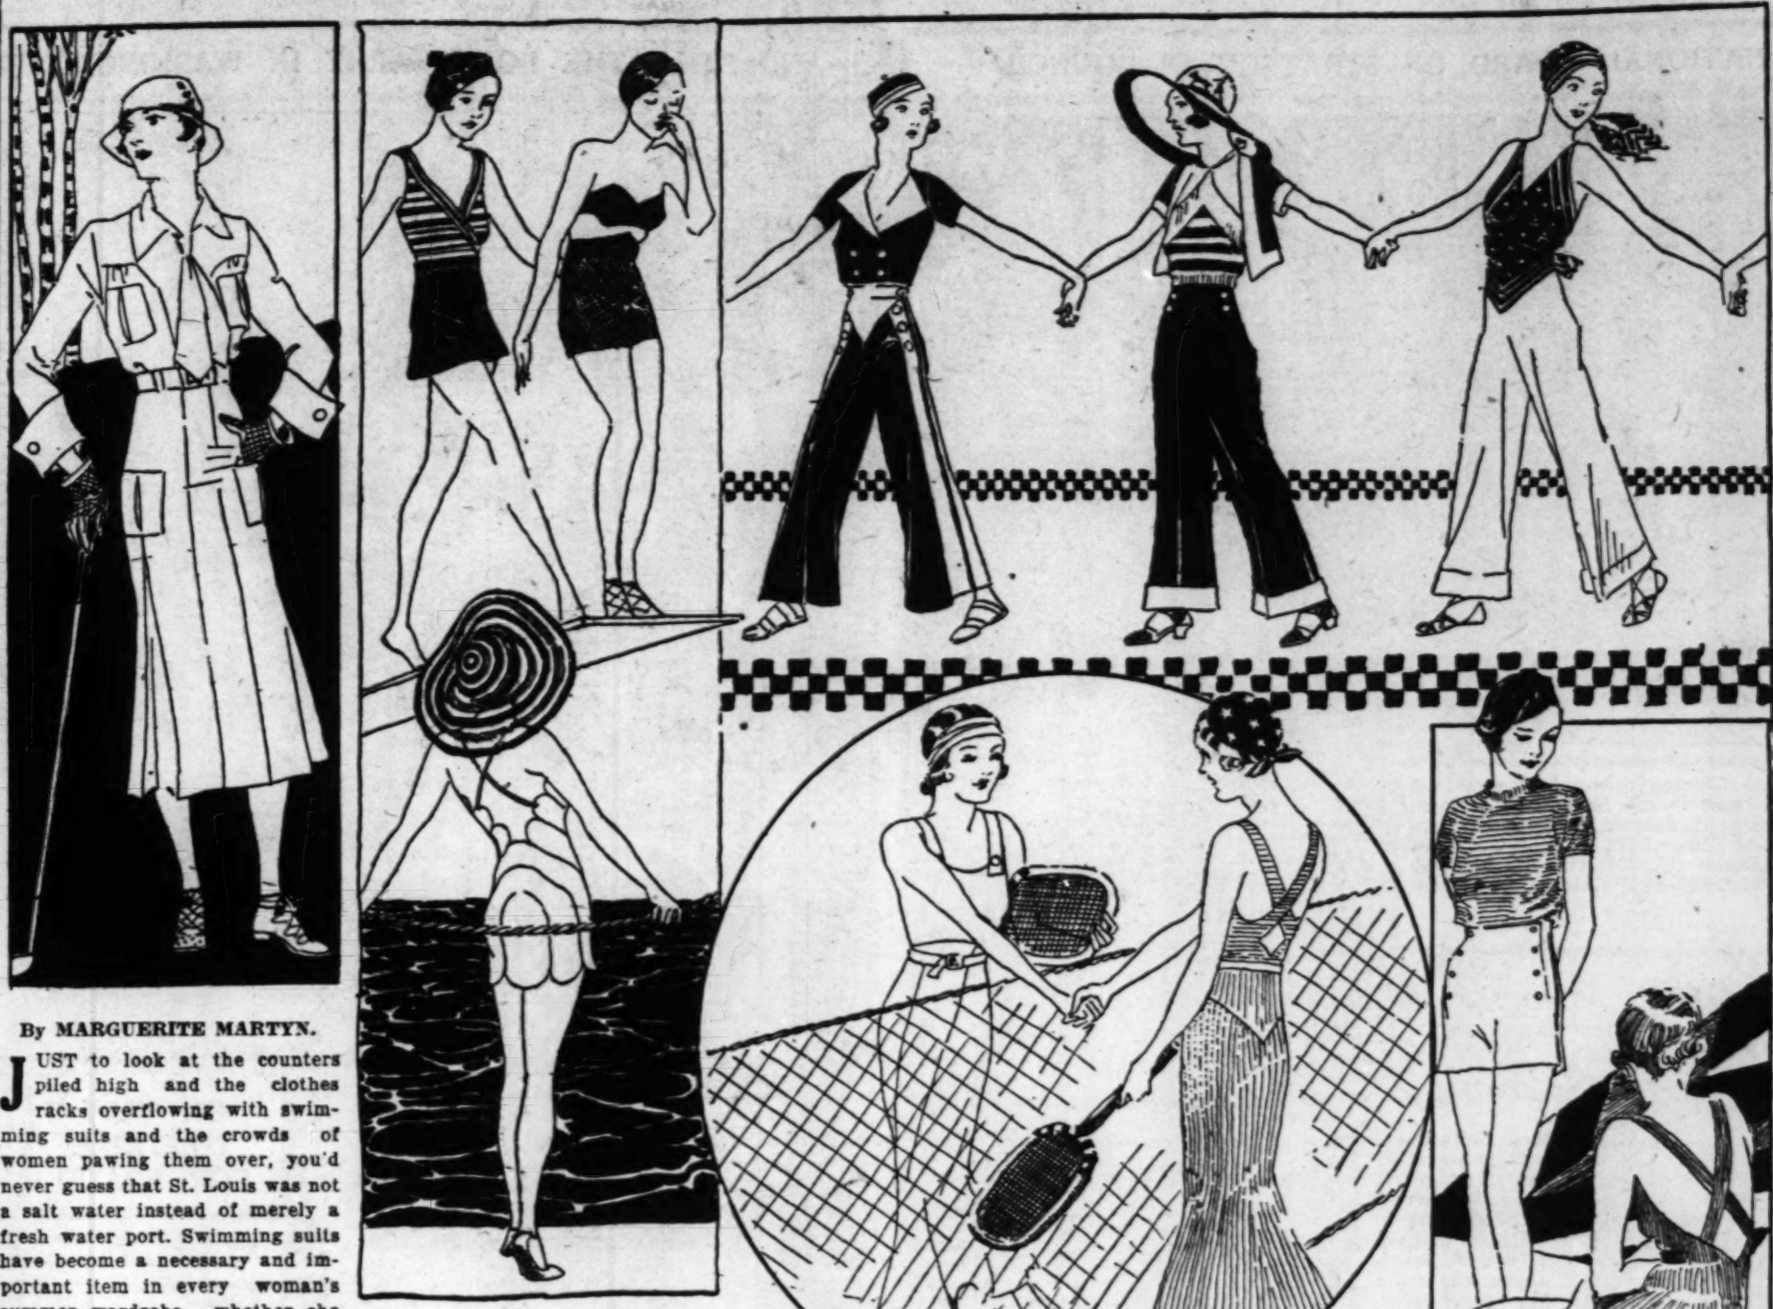

At 10 o'clock Mabel came up. "Believe me now? He isn't coming."

Why did she long to see him so much? When she didn't know him, when she had only seen him twice and then for such a short time? She'd have to get over him, and quickly, too, for obviously Mabel was right. Eleven o'clock and he hadn't come. Twelve, and she was standing in line turning tickets in. Only 55 cents, tonight, hardly worth coming for when she had been so tired.

He meant nothing to her. Nothing, she declared indignantly to herself. That she, Julie Brett, should be so concerned about a man she knew nothing of, angered her. A commercial artist with an advertising company.

"Sorry, kid," Mabel sympathized

Summer Girls in the Swim

By MARGUERITE MARTYN.

JUST to look at the counters piled high and the clothes racks overflowing with swimming suits and the crowds of women pawing them over, you'd never guess that St. Louis was not a salt water instead of merely a fresh water port. Swimming suits have become a necessary and important item in every woman's summer wardrobe, whether she expects to take her dip in a natatorium, a country club pool or in the Meramec or Mississippi. Every store has its beach shop and it may be those of Santa Monica offer more daring styles but let St. Louis buyers get an inkling of them and St. Louis customers will be having them, too.

Here, by the way, is an inkling, a pen-and-inkling, which can be substantiated by news photographs, if you doubt the veracity of my pen lines, of the styles in which they are going down to the sea in sunny California. I refer to the girls on the spring board, one clad in brassiere and shorts and nothing more, not even a shoulder strap, and the other in stripes, yellow, blue, green, red and white, the official colors of the Olympiad. And the standing figure below wearing a few scallops supported by the slenderest of suspenders.

Already according to report such costumes are giving Santa Monica authorities concern and laws are being passed forbidding on public beaches brassiere suits unless the front portion is attached to the trunks by a wide strap and unless they have shoulder straps, which same are not to be dropped. Meanwhile, authority here being not yet aroused to the situation, St. Louis swimmers can go as far as they like in the direction of joining the nudists and apparently many of them are intent upon doing just that. One of the fastest selling suits, according to one beach department manager is the one with the bandanna front, a square or triangle of material fastened by one corner to a string of beads or a neck band, two other corners tied at the back of the waist, the whole devoid of shoulder straps.

Two of my pajama girls are wearing this type of suit. One is in red and white striped jersey with jacket and trousers to match for lounging or playing on the beach. On the other a whole bandanna is attached to a pair of white pique slacks, to be worn over the swimming suit when out of the water.

The third pajama suit is the popular bell hop model in red and white flannel with brass buttons. Pajama makers have been learning a thing or two about cutting and fitting these garments to the feminine figure. They all fit the hips more trimly and the trouser legs do not flop with such abandon as they did last summer. Below at the right are pictured two extremes of temperature in beach costumes. The girl who is cultivating a sun tan wears a bib and a pair of suspenders from the waist up while her companion is shivering, no doubt, in a turtle neck striped shirt and a pair of Hawaiian shorts of white sail cloth donned over her swim suit.

White, they tell me, is the most popular color for bathing suits. Blues next and then the pastel colors, bright greens, yellows and brown not to be overlooked. V necklines are becoming, square and camisole ones are new but round necks are most generally worn.

Most of the suits are of jersey, many of them have all-over or geometric designs done in pin tucks. Pajamas match or harmonize with the suit and if you can't be bothered with pajamas—for, confess, aren't they awkward things to get into? you can be just as smart in a beach robe. Some of these are quite elegant, of terry cloth in gorgeous colors, they look almost like evening wraps. Others are tailored and mannish or military looking with double rows of buttons on the chest. A beach rug of terry cloth put together in modernistic patches of color that can be used to lounge on or lounge in is another type of beach wrap.

ACCESSORIES in the way of huge floppy hats, all sorts of tricky caps and scarfs for the head, bags of rubberized silk or cotton or of Turkish toweling lined with rubber and having boldly cut wooden tops laced through with cords; beach cushions and rugs, water proof, that can be rolled up and carried by a strap; many new designs in sandals, together with parasols and novel belts, beads and other jewelry, are shown in the beach departments.

Near by you find other departments busy just now outfitting the outdoor woman. Golf seems to be the only sport for which we really go fully clad this summer. Golf is a man's game, perhaps, and women must not start too many innovations in dress or otherwise. Described by the stylist as a perfect golf costume, the one sketched is a shirt maker's type of dress with a trig collar, wide loose cuffs, neat white crepe four-in-hand tie and four grand pockets. It was shown in linen crash, white, natural and brown. Brown or green ghillies and hat were recommended as proper accompaniments.

For tennis we dress again, or go dressed as if for a party. The two tennis frocks sketched happen to be of seersucker cut on tailored lines with suspender backs, but some of the tennis frocks shown are positively dressy—not fussy—but made of silk pique, crepe and other slinky materials in pastel colors and cut in graceful lines. Except that the skirts are short, they resemble much our backless evening gowns.

Crocheted Jackets. Crocheted string has made some flippant little jackets to wear over summer frocks. The string is a combination linen and cotton cord and comes in white, yellow, green or royal blue shades. There are also string boleros, string scarfs, berets and string belts all matching in pattern.

Pique and Corduroy. Cotton pique and corduroy will be mated for the smartest of summer ensembles. One of the first attempts at combining the two this season bore striking results. The dress was a wide waisted cotton pique and the jacket a Cardinal red velvet corduroy in loose, swagger style.

Behind the Screens

by Robbin Coons

HOLLYWOOD, June 11.

IN the movie parade: They won't stop dramatizing the newspapers and newspaper men. They've done the sob story, the sex story, the sports story, the columnists—Hollywood as well as Broadway—and now they're turning to the sports writers. Wisely, too, for there's a colorful galaxy of scribes.

"Sports Page" is the first feature announced, and a series that promises much is going to keep the Gleason family busy a while. "The Sports Page" is the title of the nine columns to be written by Charley Paddock, the speedy footballer, and directed by James Gleason, with himself, Lucille and Russell in the cast. Real sports celebrities are to be corralled to take parts. It's Jimmy's first say in screen-directing.

PEGGY SHANNON, I believe, should hold an all-time record for flop shows. She appeared in 15 stage failures before coming to Hollywood. And every failure helped, she says—because seeing her so often at openings, the critics began to recognize her.

Lillian Harvey, star of the Foxman picture "Congress Dances," currently attracting attention, comes to Fox after some competitive bidding by Hollywood studios that sent her salary up to a pleasant figure. She is English, smart and choiceful of personality, and advance heralds.

NOEL COWARD'S "Cavalcade" will be in lavishness of production and stellar array the "Grand Hotel" of the next season, and a bonanza to the extra list. There will be about 2500 people in the movie, with about a dozen in important roles. An all-English cast, of course, but Director Frank Borzage is anticipating trouble in finding English children.

Two infants on a movie set were squeaking loudly, interfering with recording, until the director walked over and chuckled each under the chin—then they both smiled: actors always smile for directors, no matter how young.

It was shown in linen crash, white, natural and brown. Brown or green ghillies and hat were recommended as proper accompaniments.

For tennis we dress again, or go dressed as if for a party. The two tennis frocks sketched happen to be of seersucker cut on tailored lines with suspender backs, but some of the tennis frocks shown are positively dressy—not fussy—but made of silk pique, crepe and other slinky materials in pastel colors and cut in graceful lines. Except that the skirts are short, they resemble much our backless evening gowns.

Crocheted Jackets. Crocheted string has made some flippant little jackets to wear over summer frocks. The string is a combination linen and cotton cord and comes in white, yellow, green or royal blue shades. There are also string boleros, string scarfs, berets and string belts all matching in pattern.

Pique and Corduroy. Cotton pique and corduroy will be mated for the smartest of summer ensembles. One of the first attempts at combining the two this season bore striking results. The dress was a wide waisted cotton pique and the jacket a Cardinal red velvet corduroy in loose, swagger style.

HOLLYWOOD, June 11.

IN the movie parade: They won't stop dramatizing the newspapers and newspaper men. They've done the sob story, the sex story, the sports story, the columnists—Hollywood as well as Broadway—and now they're turning to the sports writers. Wisely, too, for there's a colorful galaxy of scribes.

"Sports Page" is the first feature announced, and a series that promises much is going to keep the Gleason family busy a while. "The Sports Page" is the title of the nine columns to be written by Charley Paddock, the speedy footballer, and directed by James Gleason, with himself, Lucille and Russell in the cast. Real sports celebrities are to be corralled to take parts. It's Jimmy's first say in screen-directing.

PEGGY SHANNON, I believe, should hold an all-time record for flop shows. She appeared in 15 stage failures before coming to Hollywood. And every failure helped, she says—because seeing her so often at openings, the critics began to recognize her.

Lillian Harvey, star of the Foxman picture "Congress Dances," currently attracting attention, comes to Fox after some competitive bidding by Hollywood studios that sent her salary up to a pleasant figure. She is English, smart and choiceful of personality, and advance heralds.

NOEL COWARD'S "Cavalcade" will be in lavishness of production and stellar array the "Grand Hotel" of the next season, and a bonanza to the extra list. There will be about 2500 people in the movie, with about a dozen in important roles. An all-English cast, of course, but Director Frank Borzage is anticipating trouble in finding English children.

Two infants on a movie set were squeaking loudly, interfering with recording, until the director walked over and chuckled each under the chin—then they both smiled: actors always smile for directors, no matter how young.

If you ask My Opinion

Martha Carr

DEAR MRS. CARR: I would appreciate your opinion on my problem. I have been married five years to a man who has, in that time, worked only about two years at intervals. He seems aggressive enough but lacks something, and has shouldered responsibilities belonging to him, even paying his personal debts out of my small salary. My health is such now that under my doctor's orders, I should stop work. I have put off this for some time, but I am afraid that, in times like these, it is difficult for a man to get a steady job. And so, there is no use in telling me to give up my job and plant the care on his shoulders. I have tried that with no results.

LORETTA.

DEAR MRS. CARR: I know a married man about 60 years old (I am 18) who has a home in the country. He has a man and woman taking care of the place and they remain there at all times. This man treats me like a daughter; in fact, he calls me his daughter. I am an orphan and he asked me if I would like to go up there some week-end. Would that be all right? I know the man is perfectly reliable and would treat me all right.

PETTY.

DEAR MRS. CARR: I am feeling blue and come to you for advice. I have been told that I would do well if I would study art. I would love to study at the St. Louis School of Fine Arts, but can't afford it now. Have they a night course there? Perhaps I could work my way through. Or where could I get some help?

THE ZEBRAS

DAILY STORY FOR CHILDREN

By Mary Graham Bonner

The Zebra

On their way to see the zebras they passed by members of the giraffe family. The children were by themselves once more. The pilot had told them he would meet them later on.

It was certainly a great experience to see the giraffes in their native land. John and Percy thought they were very graceful (or such tall, long-necked creatures, and were quite fascinated by the way the giraffes moved. Then they saw the levelled slight possible in the whole giraffe world.

They saw a mother with her child, and the child only reached to the beginning of the mother's long neck. They saw some other mothers and babies after this.

Now they came into some mountainous country and there they beheld the zebras. They were so beautifully and evenly marked. Their stripes went right down around their legs to their hoofs, and it seemed remarkable that they could be so perfectly striped.

"These are called the mountain zebras," John told Percy. "For I remember the description the chimpanzees gave us of the families. There are other families in other parts of the continent with different kinds of stripes.

"But let's not bother about them as they are shy and do not care to be tamed. They may think we want them to take us for rides, for sometimes they are used for drawing wagons and they're not very fond of this work."

"They'd rather not be tame?" Percy asked.

"Much rather not," John answered, "though they are good-natured when they are used for work. Still they don't like it. That's what I was told. They'd rather be free in these mountains."

Wash, dry and air your fleeced cooker after each use.

Fashion laces up some of her newest frocks like a shoe. One little brown shantung suit for hot summer days has a little waist-length jacket laced four inches up from the hemline in back and a skirt laced up on the side with beige crocheted string. A coat of cream-colored wool is laced instead of buttoned up the front with a heavy cream-colored cord slipped through rings.

MEMBER OF HOUSE FALLS DEAD AS HE ARGUES FOR BONUS

Edick of Tennessee Taken Ill on Floor—15-Minute Effort to Save Him Is Unsuccessful.

NOTE ON QUESTION PUT OFF A DAY

Test Ballot Shows That Lower Chamber Does Not Have Strength to Override a Veto.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, June 14.—Representative Edward E. Edick (Dem.), Tennessee, died today shortly after he had collapsed on the House floor while advocating payment of the soldiers' bonus. Several physicians tried for nearly 15 minutes to save his life, but he died without regaining consciousness.

He was carried immediately to the Speaker's lobby adjoining the House chamber. Mrs. Edick, who was in the gallery when her husband collapsed, fainted but was revived and taken to his side.

The House adjourned immediately. Thus final action on the bonus, which had been expected today, went over until tomorrow.

The Senate also adjourned as a mark of respect to Representative Edick.

Edick, of Pulaski, Tenn., was 60 years old. Besides engaging in politics, he was a lawyer and farmer. He represented the Government as appeal agent during the World War. He was elected to the Sixty-ninth and succeeding Congresses.

DEBATE IN HOUSE ON BONUS BILL

By RAYMOND F. BRANDET, Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, June 14.—The House today began formal consideration of proposals for immediate cash payment of the soldiers' bonus, despite President Hoover's announcement that he would veto the measure if it were presented to him.

The 226-to-175 vote yesterday to discharge the Rules Committee from further consideration of the Patman bill for the payment of the bonus by the issuance of $2,200,000 worth of unsecured paper money indicated that some sort of cash payment plan would be approved by the House. Yesterday's vote indicated, however, that sponsors of a proposed legislation would not be able to muster enough votes to override a presidential veto.

The plan to pay at once the adjusted service certificates which will not fall due until 1945 will encounter obstacles in the Senate also. The Senate Finance Committee, to which the House bill will be referred, is said to be strongly against a cash payment at this time and it is doubtful whether such legislation could command a majority in the Senate.

Acting Speaker Rainey of Illinois declared today that the bonus was "locked." He said the large vote against discharging the Rules Committee surprised him, and added that it proved conclusively that the bonus advocates would not be able to override a presidential veto.

No legislation proposed this week—not even the prohibition program—has caused so much fear among timid Congressmen as the bonus bill. With the primaries and elections still to be faced, many are trying to guess which will be the popular side. Letters and telegrams from constituents are about evenly divided for and against the cash payments. The weatherman representative is in an embarrassing position. The leaders of the bonus fight are two comparatively little-known Southern Democrats, Wright Patman of Texas and John E. Rankin of Mississippi.

The House began consideration of the Patman bill at 11 o'clock this morning, a resolution adopted yesterday limiting general debate to four hours, the time to be evenly divided between those for and against the bill. After general debate the time is exhausted, the House will proceed under the five-minute rule whereby members are limited to five-minute speeches on the pending amendment.

As on yesterday, when the House voted to consider the issue, the chamber was crowded with bonus supporters who filled all available space in the galleries long before the meeting hour.

Patman was in charge of the time for the advocates of the legislation. The time for the opposition was allotted by Representative Charles B. Crisp (Dem.), Georgia, and Willis C. Hawley (Rep.), Oregon.
